When it comes to protecting the way we do business and the future of the independent agency system in Kansas, we must stand united. That's where KIAPAC comes in. For decades, KIAPAC has been a critical part of making sure Kansas independent agents have:

- A recognized, united voice at the Statehouse
- A seat at the table when the big discussions are taking place
- Access to elected officials so they have the resources they need to make informed decisions on insurance and small business matters

Whether it's taxes, tort reform or rebating, the Kansas Legislature and statewide elected officials like the Kansas Insurance Commissioner make decisions every day that impact agents and the consumers we serve. Join a KIAPAC Club today and make sure independent agents continue to have a voice when those decisions are on the table.
