

Growing up locally in Chino Hills, CA, Dr. Melissa Taylor obtained her B.S. in Biology from the University of California, Riverside. She received her medical degree from Western University of the Health Sciences in Pomona. She is the first and only physician in her family. As a board-certified Family Practice physician for 22 years, she has consistently been in a leadership role. She is the Medical Director for Citrus Valley Medical Associates, PrimeCare Citrus Valley, and California Clinical Partners Medicare Accountable Care Organization. Throughout her career, she has often been the only female in administrative meetings.

Dr. Taylor enjoys living in Norco with her husband of 27 years and their 2 sons, ages 18 and 21. She also loves animals, travelling, and swimming. Women face many different struggles in leadership, so she utilizes being a female leader and mother as a tool to bond with other women and maximize the potential of becoming our best selves.
