

Tim McCormack
Executive Director at Illinois Eye Center
Sept. 2, 2020

Tim McCormack of Illinois Eye Center describes Peoria, his hometown, as a “microcosm of the US.” He credits its “inherent diversity” for the top talent found in our healthcare industry.

Of Illinois Eye Center, McCormack said, “we have a very special group. Our doctors are committed to making care more accessible to more people. I think that speaks to their altruism.”

McCormack described Peoria’s healthcare industry as, “oversized for the community.” He believes this gap made it relatively easy to spend his entire career in healthcare.

“There’s many opportunities to help you move and progress, and there’s a network there to learn about opportunities and take advantage of them,” said McCormack.

McCormack was born and raised in Peoria and went to college at Illinois Wesleyan University in Bloomington. He lives in Peoria with his wife, Karen, and their two adult children live and work in the area.
