

NEWS RELEASE

CONTACT:
Courtney Dell
Patron Development & Communications
850-435-2533 ext. 105
cdell@pensacolasymphony.com

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Aug. 26, 2020

Pensacola Symphony Announces 2020-21 Season Changes

PENSACOLA, Fla. – The Pensacola Symphony Orchestra is postponing the start of its 2020-21 season and altering a portion of its programming out of concern for the health of its patrons and musicians during the current public health crisis.

In an effort to increase safety for patrons and musicians, programming will be adjusted for some concerts, allowing for a smaller orchestra and shorter programs (around one hour) without an intermission. In making these changes, the organization hopes to limit musicians' and patrons' exposure to others while providing a stellar musical experience and retaining guest artists. With the changes outlined, the 2020-21 season will be presented as follows:

Feb. 20, 2021

Opening Night!

Copland's "Appalachian Spring" with Paul Huang playing Brahms' Violin Concerto

March 6, 2021

Russian Spectacular

Prokofiev's "Classical Symphony" with Jeffrey Biegel playing Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto No. 1

March 20, 2021

Beethoven & Blue Jeans

Beethoven's Symphony No. 3, "Eroica"

April 24, 2021

Masterworks III

May 15, 2021

Masterworks IV

June 26, 2021

Masterworks V

-more-

Subscriptions are currently on sale. Individual concert tickets, if available, will likely go on sale the week before the concert.

It is possible that socially distanced seating will be assigned for some concerts. For subscribers who are uncomfortable attending in person, a streaming option will be offered to enjoy the orchestra from the comfort of home.

For more information, visit pensacolasymphony.com or call the Symphony office, 850-435-2533.

#