Save Me A Plate: Pet Fostering for Thanksgiving

Do you have some room in your heart and home to bring a shelter pet home for the Thanksgiving Holidays?

Shelter life is stressful and confusing for animals, so a few days in a loving home can do wonders for a pet, both emotionally and physically. The adoption center is noisy and busy, and in your home they can relax and be themselves. And you get the joy of having a special holiday visitor November 25-29!

Our hope is to send every animal home to spend the holiday with a family! They get to get out all their zoomies, be a couch potato, or beg for one more scrap from your dinner table! Your input after fostering will provide valuable information to our staff about how your visitor did in a home environment.

For more information and to apply to become a foster, visit our website at pensacolahumane.org/foster. You will be contacted by our foster team for an orientation and to match you with a lucky cat or dog.
