Pensacola MESS Hall to hold Some Assembly Required Fundraiser

Sept 17, 2021 – Some Assembly Required is the Pensacola MESS Hall’s remote fall fundraiser on October 1. Participants will receive a set of activities along with special materials to enjoy hands-on discovery around the dinner table with their own friends and family. MESS Hall staff will engage participants through a Facebook Live feed to answer questions, share successes, and highlight recent MESS Hall programming successes.

Individual kits, suitable for one household, are $30. Sponsorships are available, providing larger numbers of kits to share with coworkers, friends, and neighbors. Activities are designed to be engaging for adults, though kids can participate with adult assistance.

“The Pensacola MESS Hall relies on community support to ensure that our programs are accessible and affordable,” said Megan Pratt, executive director. “The pandemic has prohibited in person fundraising events, but we are excited for this event which will engage more people, including families, in discovery and learning more about the mission of the MESS Hall.”

Kits can be purchased online at <https://pensacolamesshall.org/someassemblyrequired/>. Our signature sponsor is Navy Federal Credit Union.

ABOUT THE MESS HALL

Founded in 2012, the Pensacola MESS Hall is not a typical science museum. It’s all hands-on science. Visitors to the facility enjoy exploring math, engineering, science, and stuff with an ever-changing menu of mess kits, activities and exhibits. Additionally, the MESS Hall serves our community with outreach programs, field trips, and other events. For more information about the MESS Hall, visit pensacolamesshall.org.
