SUNDAYS WITH QUINT

Employee retention is paramount today. We can't always control the number of people in the job market, but there are many ways to make sure the employees we have are engaged and fulfilled. One way is to focus on skill building.

Research shows that employees are more likely to stay on staff when they feel management is investing in their development.

Whether it's your first day on the job or you're well established in your field, Sundays With Quint offers a treasure trove of valuable insights and practical advice for people at any stage in their career.

Sundays With Quint will empower your team members to become effective employees and leaders that positively impact your organization and position it for success.

You will learn how to:

- Identify the traits of a high performer
- Build consistency in your organization
- Keep your company's immune system healthy
- And much more!
