Anglin Reichmann Armstrong P.C. Merges in Adamson + Co., P.A. in Central Florida

August 2023 — To invest in the clients and communities of Central Florida, Anglin Reichmann Armstrong P.C. (Anglin) has merged in Adamson + Co, P.A., effective August 1, 2023. The combined firms will operate under the name Anglin Reichmann Armstrong and expand the firm’s presence in the U.S. Southeast region and nationally.

This merger strengthens Anglin’s commitment to serve existing and new clients throughout Central Florida and grow with them, adding extensive knowledge and community investment through the Adamson team. With an office in Polk County, centrally located between Tampa and Orlando, Anglin can deliver additional resources, technology and professional career opportunities to several local communities.

“Central Florida has been on our radar for a long time, and we already have existing relationships and clients there,” said Anglin Managing Partner Brandon Smith. “We looked thoroughly at the culture and client service approach of Adamson + Co., and we saw that Eric Adamson and the team there shared our vision along with the industry knowledge to be a great fit.”

Managing Shareholder of Adamson + Co., Eric Adamson, anticipates opportunities with Anglin to serve his sophisticated client base while adding career opportunities and investment in the local community, he said. “It’s not just a name change. A lot will change for the better with technology enhancements, community leadership and job growth that Anglin can bring to our market. Plus, I can focus even more time on the advisory side and help my clients grow their businesses, build wealth and legacies.”

Adamson notes excitement among his clients and staff about the announcement. “The culture of Anglin is about giving back, and it matters that their people already serve on boards and leadership positions within various industries,” he said. “They bring resources and talent the community wants.”

Polk County is the fastest growing county in Florida and among the top fastest growing counties in the U.S. This strategic merger will position Anglin to continue offering guidance to government contracting, construction/real estate, technology, healthcare and other industries through Solutions Advisory and Client Accounting and Advisory Services (CAAS) as well as tax, audit and wealth management guidance. "It's a growing, vibrant market we want to support," Smith added.
