Community Information

The City of Texas City is located in central Galveston and Chambers Counties within the waters of Galveston Bay. Generally bounded on the north by the City of Dickinson and unincorporated areas of Galveston County, on the south by the City of La Marque, east by Galveston Bay, and west by Santa Fe, Texas City wraps the City limits of La Marque and Dickinson.

The City's roots date back to the days of the Karankawa Indians and pirates Jean Lafitte and Jim Campbell. Upon Lafitte's evacuation in 1821, Campbell and his wife Mary chose to remain in the area. Between 1837 and 1839, they settled in Campbell's Bayou located in southern Texas City. Other settlers soon moved to the area due to its access to Galveston Bay and the abundance of game. In 1891, three brothers, Jacob, Henry, and Benjamin Myers recognized the potential of the area as a port. Others soon shared their vision and in 1893, the Texas City Improvement Company filed the first plat of the Town of Texas City. Permission was soon granted by the federal government to dredge a channel from the Gulf to the City. The first channel shipment was handled in 1894. Many improvements occurred over time including construction of a rail line and trestle pier. Due to financial hardships, the Texas City Improvement Company was reorganized into two companies in 1897, the Texas City Railway Terminal Company, which operated the rail lines, and the Texas City Company, which began residential development. In 1905, the first government customs house was opened, expansion of warehousing and docks took place, and the future of Texas City and its port was secured.

The Port of Texas City has been in operation for more than 100 years and is the third largest port in Texas and the largest privately owned port in the Nation. Forty-three (43) berths serve an average of 1,300 ships each year. Dockside and rail service is provided through the on-site switching terminal, Texas City's Terminal Railway, and to Burlington Northern Santa Fe and Union Pacific Railroads.

Texas City incorporated under a commission form of government in 1911. Despite a variety of disasters including the Great Depression, the Texas City Disaster, hurricanes, and flooding, tenacious leaders clung to the belief in their community's future. Development of Moses Lake and construction of the Texas City Dike, along with a variety of community and educational improvements, including establishment of a junior college district, further secured the City's future. College of the Mainland opened its doors in 1967, and major refineries and petrochemical industries formed an economic base for the port City. Residential development continued throughout the period as expansion of facilities occurred causing employment to be plentiful. Thanks to the efforts of the entire community, Texas City won the National Civic League award 'All-America City' in 1997. This award is granted to cities that have demonstrated grassroots efforts to overcome challenges and have achieved results.

The City of La Marque, is also located in the south central portion of Galveston County and is bounded on the north and east by Texas City, south by Bayou Vista and Hitchcock, and west by unincorporated Galveston County.

La Marque's history extends back to the days of the Republic of Texas. Located along the banks of Highland Bayou, the largely rural town was settled and named Highlands. During the Civil War, soldiers stopped on route between Galveston and Houston to purchase buttermilk, earning Highlands the nickname 'Buttermilk Station.' During the 1890s it was learned that another community existed with the same name. Postmistress Madam St. Ambrose renamed the town La Marque, a French term for "the mark."

Neighboring Texas City is largely responsible for La Marque's incorporation. Home to employees of many area plants, Texas City Commissioners voted to annex La Marque into its City limits. Residents rallied to become masters of their own fate and in 1953 successfully voted to incorporate the community independent of its neighboring city. A strong relationship is maintained by the two cities, however, as evidenced by the establishment of a partnership in the Texas Enterprise Zone Program. Both La Marque and Texas City offer economic incentives to new and expanding businesses as they focus on future growth.

La Marque is home to Gulf Greyhound Park, touted as the world's largest greyhound race track, Highland Bayou Park which features more than 230 acres of recreational areas, and Mahan Park. The City is also home to Kay Bailey Hutchinson, the first woman to serve as a United States Senator from Texas.

Texas City and La Marque have quick and easy access to a host of general and specialized health care facilities. Mainland Medical Center licensed for 220 beds, is a full service hospital. The greatest concentration of hospitals and medical personnel is located within the Galveston Island's medical complex. The complex includes the University of Texas Medical Branch (UTMB) with seven hospitals and 85 outpatient clinics, the UTMB-affiliated Shriners Burn Institute with one of the nation's few skin banks. A total of 1,252 beds are housed within the city of Galveston alone. As of 2000, the Galveston County Medical Association has 1100 members, including interns, residents, and doctors.

The educational system centers around four college-level institutions: The University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston, College of the Mainland at Texas City, Galveston Community College at Galveston, and the Texas A & M

Marine Institute at Galveston. Extensive medical research and training activities are the mission of UTMB, while the Texas A & M branch focuses on marine research and is home to the Texas Maritime Academy. College of the Mainland and Galveston College are full service community colleges dedicated to adult education, vocational training, and associate degree programs. Major expansion at College of the Mainland has added a Vocational Training Center. Primary and secondary education is provided by several independent school districts.

Texas City - La Marque profits from its wealth of year-round recreational opportunities including sailing, fishing, birding, camping, horseback riding, golfing, bicycling, tennis, swimming and water skiing. The county has one of the highest ratios of park-land per resident in the State of Texas. There are many parks and boat ramps located throughout the county area and approximately 50 miles of gulf beaches along Galveston Island and Bolivar Peninsula.

Area residents and visitors enjoy a wide range of cultural amenities, including museums, libraries, historical sites, art galleries, community theaters and a natatorium. Tourists are drawn by a rich variety of restaurants and excellent seafood cuisine. The area has four large convention and meeting facilities. In Texas City we have the Charles T. Doyle Convention Center with a maximum seating capacity of 1,000 people and the Nessler Center has several different rooms which can accommodate up to the following number of people: Wings of Heritage Room (500), Captains Room (175), Surf Room (60), Alamo Room (50), and the Davey Crockett Room (20). Texas City also has several other meeting facilities, which include: The Sanders Center Blue Room, which can accommodate up to 250 people, the Carver Center Pavilion, which will accommodate up to 250 people and the Timber Room will hold up to 50 people. Other facilities are the Gazebo, Amphitheatre, Rotary Pavilion, Heights Gym, Lincoln Gym and Washington Gym. Gulf Greyhound Park in La Marque has a seating capacity of 8,500. Moody Gardens has a seating capacity of 4,500 and The Moody Civic Center located on Galveston Island has a maximum seating capacity of 2,400 and League City's South Shore Harbor with a seating capacity of 1,000.

Economic Information

Introduction

Galveston County has benefited from numerous local economic development efforts, both past and ongoing. The Texas City - La Marque area has an active Chamber of Commerce including an established Economic Development Committee with industrial prospecting and tourism as a focus. Tourism and recreation have traditionally been major attractions with summer recreation opportunities attracting millions of visitors to our beaches. However, numerous "off season" events have also been staged and promoted to generate year - round tourist attractions.

Owing to the downturn in the oil and gas industries and the local economy in general, the Chamber of Commerce initiated a positive, well coordinated economic development effort by building on our strong industrial past. Industrial development remains a top priority for the Texas City - La Marque Chamber of Commerce. As a result, efforts have been made to identify appropriate sites for such development in terms of cost access, utilities, and land use regulation.

Area Overview

Galveston County is located along the upper Texas Gulf Coast just southeast of Harris County and the Houston metropolitan area. The county faces the Gulf of Mexico to the southeast and is bordered by Brazoria County to the southwest, Harris County to the northwest, and Chambers County to the northeast. The 13-county Houston-Galveston Area Council region is shown at right providing a relational perspective of the surrounding counties. A map of Texas is included on page 4, providing distances and direction to major cities.

Cities located in Galveston County are shown on the jurisdictional boundary map on the facing page. The County covers 399 square miles, 500 square miles including the waters of Galveston Bay, East and West Bays, and the Gulf of Mexico. The City of Galveston, located on Galveston Island, is the County Seat. Houston's suburban development now approaches the northwest portion of Galveston County strengthening the economic ties between the two areas.

Most of Galveston County's land area is situated on the Mainland, west of Galveston Bay. The remainder includes Galveston Island, a barrier island just southeast of the Mainland, and Bolivar Peninsula, a barrier-like strip of land stretching down from the Mainland on the east side of Galveston Bay and nearly meeting Galveston Island at its northeast tip. Galveston Island and Bolivar Peninsula together enclose Galveston Bay from the Gulf of Mexico. The gap between the two, known as Bolivar Roads, forms a natural entrance to Galveston Bay and to the Houston, Galveston, and Texas City ship channels and ports.

Galveston County had a 1990 United States Census population of 217,399 which grew to a 2000 population of 250,158. The City of Galveston, the county seat, is also the largest city with a 2000 population of 57,247. Texas City follows as the third largest city with a population at 41,521.

is a mixed-use, master-planned community located along Interstate 45 in Texas City. Minutes from major employment centers and sunny Galveston beaches, the community also offers convenient shopping at Tanger Outlets, and a 35-acre amusement park. Schools in the Dickinson Independent School District serve Lago Mar.

EXPANDING DEVELOPMENT

Once complete, Lago Mar will include over 7,000 homes ranging from $200,000 to $450,000.

BETWEEN DESTINATIONS

The Lago Mar development is along I-45 about halfway between Houston and Galveston. It is close to Kemah and other Bay Area destinations.

1 HOUSTON
A major hub, Houston is where thousands of Bay Area residents work.

2 KEMAH
Kemah, especially the Kemah Boardwalk, is a Bay Area destination.

3 LAGO MAR
Lago Mar will be about halfway between Houston and Galveston.

4 GALVESTON
Galveston has beaches and piers for swimming and fishing.

LAGO MAR DETAILS

Land Tejas bought a 3,300-acre tract of land in Texas City in 2006. It took two years to get the documentation to start building, and then the market crashed. “We obtained all our entitlements in 2008 just in time for the market to disappear for single-family residences,” Campbell said.

In 2011, Land Tejas sold a 55-acre site to a developer that built and opened a Tanger Outlet Mall on the north side of the property. About a year or two later, Land Tejas sold other sites, one of which became a Buc-ee’s, and the other of which will become an Adventure Pointe theme park, Campbell said.

“If we can provide [residents] quality attractions on their way to Galveston or create destinations that bring more people to the county, the better served we are,” Galveston County Precinct 4 Commissioner Ken Clark said.

In most developments, residences are built first to attract commercial development, but because of the housing market crash, the opposite happened at Lago Mar, Campbell said.

Land Tejas included a 2-acre Crystal Lagoon in its Balmoral development in northeast Houston, but Lago Mar’s lagoon will be six times as big, said Tim Johnson, Land Tejas’ director of sales and marketing. The lagoon will include sand beaches and advanced technology to keep the water clean and a crystal-clear blue. Its depth will range up to 10-12 feet deep, and its bottom will be lined similar to a swimming pool. The lagoon will have private and public access, though the public will have to pay an undetermined amount to use the lagoon, Johnson said. “It’s pretty unique,” Campbell said. So far, city officials and residents alike are sold on the idea of the lagoon, which is set to be complete by December and swimmable by spring 2020. The private portion of the lagoon will be open before the public part, Campbell said.

“We plan on having restaurants and a hotel adjacent to the lagoon on the east side of it. Those folks that will go to the restaurants or stay at the hotel will have access [to the lagoon],” Campbell said. Other amenities include lakes, a 3,000-square-foot clubhouse, a resort-style pool, a fitness center, a playground and a soccer field, Johnson said.

ECONOMIC EFFECT

Land Tejas tends to build its developments along major roads, and considering its proximity to Houston, Galveston and the Bay Area, Texas City made for a great location, Campbell said. “We try to purchase property on major thoroughfares that provide our residents quick access to the various business districts and employment centers on those main arteries,” he said.

Jenny Senter, president of the Texas City-La Marque Chamber of Commerce, expects Texas City’s population will grow by 20,000 once Lago Mar is built. “I think the Lago Mar development offers people the opportunity for easy access whether you work on the island or downtown Houston,” she said. Texas City is known for its petrochemical industry. As that and other industries grow, their employees will have options to live in Texas City without necessarily having to move to other Greater Houston area communities, Finan said. Finan and Campbell believe Lago Mar could one day attract the health care industry to Texas City. The Bay Area farther north is home to several hospitals, and they could spread toward Galveston as Houston and surrounding communities continue to grow and attract residents, Finan and Campbell said. Once complete, Lago Mar will provide over $2 billion in taxable value to the area, Campbell said.

“That will increase the city and the county and the colleges and the taxing base by quite a bit,” he said. The development will also give I-45 motorists an eye-catching view of Texas City, drawing in visitors, Senter said.

“That is the new horizon for us. We’ll have a much more visible presence from I-45,” she said. “It’s a huge bonus for us to have Lago Mar development there.” Finan agreed.

Transportation

The Texas City-La Marque area is bisected by Interstate Highway 45 (see IH-45 in the maps below and on page 17), which provides convenient access to the Houston metropolitan area and to Houston Hobby and Intercontinental Airports. Approximately 20.6 million vehicles used IH 45 in 1994 carrying in and out of state visitors to local destinations (see TXDOT 2000 Houston District Traffic Map on page 17).

In the area of transportation, Texas City-La Marque is served locally by two principle airports: Scholes Field on Galveston Island and Houston Gulf Airport in the League City area of North Galveston County. Commuter airlines do not currently operate at either airport, although two of the three runways at Scholes Field are in the 6,000 ft. range. Scholes Field is most important to the helicopter firms, which serve the offshore oil and gas industry. The Mainland is also served by three major state highways, which fan out from their intersection, just North of Galveston Island also known as the Texas City "Y". They include:

- ☛ State Highway 3 (see SH3 in the maps below and on page 17) is parallel to and was the forerunner to IH-45
- ☛ State Highway 6 (see SH6 in the maps below and on page 17) cuts across the western portion of the county, linking the Port of Galveston to numerous other highways and communities south and west of the Houston area
- ☛ State Highway 146 (see SH146 in the maps below and on page 17) runs North from the Port of Galveston through the county's most industrialized areas, and on into Harris County to the Port of Houston and Interstate Highway 10.

Numerous other farm roads, state and US highways link the surrounding county's population centers. Considerable access is available from the industrialized areas east of IH 45 along Galveston Bay. In the Houston-Galveston region, Galveston County is second only to Harris in miles of urban highway maintained by the state. Within the Houston-Galveston region, Galveston County has the second highest number of registered motor vehicles.

The county's transportation network is geared toward the ports of Texas City and Galveston with numerous railroad and truck lines operating in these port areas. During 2000 a total of 1,565 ships and 8,036 barges carrying 67,335,291 net tons of cargo used the Texas City port facilities. In 2000, railroad handling totaled 39,931 cars; 17,668 loads in and 18,714 cars emptied from line hauled railroad cars. The Texas City Terminal had a record year in 1990 for tonnage handled loading an average 22 vessels per day. Texas City has the 3rd largest port in Texas in total tonnage, ranking behind Houston and Corpus Christi and 11th largest in the nation.

The Port of Texas City / Texas City Terminal Railway Company is the eighth largest port of 153 ports in the United States and the third largest in Texas with water borne tonnage exceeding 78 million net tons. The Texas City Terminal Railway Company provides an important land link to the port, handling over 25,000 car loads per year.

The Port of Texas City's success as a privately owned port has been aided by its shareholders, The Union Pacific Railroad and BNSF Railway railroads whose connections allow for expeditious interchange of their traffic. Port crews provide switching in the Texas City area, inside the Port and for all industries and businesses requiring rail services. Connections with main lines are made daily by the switching terminal at two junctions within six miles of the main classification yard.

Port Of Texas City was founded in 1893
located in Texas City

The Texas City-La Marque economic base has emerged within the last century to become a major global economic power. Boasting one of the largest ports in the country, it is a gateway to worldwide trade and a major hub for world energy supplies.

The industrial base comes from a strong petrochemical industry with significant base operations in the area. They include BP-Texas City Chemical, Marathon Petroleum, Valero Refining, Eastman Chemical, Dow Chemicals and Ashland. In addition to providing a large number of jobs these companies contribute greatly to the community and local economy.

TANGER OUTLET

The first ever joint venture between the country's leaders in outlet development, Tanger Factory Outlets Center, Inc. and Simon Premium Outlets, have created the new Gateway to the Gulf Coast. Located on 55 acres along the heavily tourist driven Interstate 45South, the new 350,000 sq. ft. branded Tanger Outlets is the premium shopping destination of the region. Taking its architectural aesthetics from both historic Texas City and the seaside community of Galveston, the new center is divided into four distinct districts where the shopper will meander through meticulously landscaped promenades, under trellis and bris soleil which converge in an open air center court aptly named Gulf Coast Promenade. This scenic focal point of the center is home to a stylish yet contemporary food court, which will provide climate-controlled indoor seating as well as outside dining under umbrellas along the water's edge. Complimentary Wi-Fi is offered throughout the center. There are 90 leading brand name and designer outlet stores in Phase I. The Texas City-La Marque area is home for a wide array of retail, industry and service-oriented businesses. Everything from large department stores to specialty boutiques can be found. Shopping is plentiful!

Texas City's Buc-ee's is a "mega-store" and that's not using that term lightly. It's a sporting goods store, a Texas boutique, toy store, surf shop, deli, and miniature grocery store rolled into one building. Oh, and don't forget the Beaver Nuggets, those addictive sweet snacks.

Shopping Texas City & Historic 6th Street

Sixth Street is lined with many historical commercial buildings dating from the early 1900's. The storied old buildings now house a host of shops, jewelry store, sports bar, antique shops, casual cafe, salon, and much more. Other shops and restaurants are lined up down Palmer Highway (the main thoroughfare in Texas City).

Shopping La Marque

from Wal-Mart and Sam's Club to Mom & Pop Shops....You'll be pleasantly surprised at what great hidden treasures are right here in our backyard!
