classroom to career

a program of Leadership Sioux Center

Our first session of Classroom to Career included a tour of Pella Corporation! It was a great opportunity for area educators to get a first-hand look of today's high-tech manufacturing environment. They also heard about the skills needed in today's workforce and brainstormed ways to bring those skills into their classrooms. Thank you to Pella Corporation for hosting us!

Manufacturers continue to develop products and unlock new technologies that grow our economy.

Manufacturing businesses create high-paying, high-skilled jobs through entrepreneurship, and their competitiveness revitalizes American manufacturing.

He taught high school and college English for over forty years, retiring from teaching in 2008. He has written a book on word histories, Angling in the English Stream; a memoir, The Tuning of a Hear; and three collections of poetry: The God of Material Things, Illuminated Manuscript, and Tongues that Dance.
