

Belleayre Resort Plan Marches On

Hear Update At June Breakfast

The Belleayre Resort
AT CATSKILL PARK

The $400-million Belleayre Resort at Catskill Park has been almost 20 years in the making, but the new managing member of Crossroads Ventures, LLC remains confident it will eventually come to fruition.

How confident?
"I'm confident enough to write checks and put my reputation on the line and be the managing member," said Ken Pasternak, who will address the Chamber's monthly breakfast meeting on June 20. "I wouldn't be writing checks if I wasn't confident. Money speaks louder than words, right?"

The breakfast is scheduled for 7:30-9 a.m. at the Best Western Plus in Kingston.

Pasternak, a world-class developer and business mogul, said he wanted to "introduce myself to the community and give an update on the resort" at the breakfast.

The resort plan calls for two hotels, the Highmount Spa Resort and Wildacres Hotel.

Highmount would feature 120 hotel units, 96 other lodging units, a world-class spa and food and beverage facilities.

Wildacres Hotel would include 208 hotel units, 163 other lodging units, a conference center, food and beverage facilities and a Wilderness Activities Center. The hotel would also feature an 18-hole championship golf course designed by Davis Love III.

"The Belleayre Resort at Catskill Park, as currently proposed, will become the premier, four-season resort directly serving the New York metropolitan area," according to Crossroad's website at www.belleayreresort.com. "It will also be the most environmentally advanced and responsible large-scale development project

SUNY Ulster Opens Registration for New 'AdultEDge' for Fall 2017

SUNY Ulster is introducing a new program this fall to help busy adults gain a degree or credential in programs with regional job growth. Called AdultEDge, programs are offered in Business, Human Services, Criminal Justice, Technology, Health and the Environment.

AdultEDge programs are offered at the Kingston Center of

SUNY Ulster
Start Here. Go Far.

SUNY Ulster at 94 Mary's Ave. in Kingston. Because adults lead hectic lives, AdultEDge offers:

- Evening, accelerated, and online class formats
- One-stop shop for accessible and ongoing student service, registration, and advisement
- Ability to earn credit for college-level learning acquired through work and life experience
- Convenient times and location
- Personalized academic success plan
- Affordable tuition – financial aid and scholarships may be available
- Attend at a manageable pace, either full-time or part-time

AdultEDge was developed to serve the needs of Ulster County residents looking to establish a better career path, set an example for children, or gain a credential to validate years of on-the-job experience, whether a first-time or returning student. SUNY Ulster also has a long tradition of being named a 'Top Military Friendly Institution' and is approved under the Veteran's Educational Assistance Act (GI Bill) and the Dependent's Act.

SUNY Ulster understands that adults have a lot going on – that's why AdultEDge is focused on being flexible and responsive to adult needs. To learn more about AdultEDge, contact either Matt Green or Sarah Fajardo at (845) 802-7190 or adultedge@sunyulster.edu.

They Do More Than You Know

Gateway Community Industries Turns 60

Did you know Gateway Community Industries has the contract to clean the Franklin D. Roosevelt Presidential Library and Museum in Hyde Park?

It's just one of the little-known facts about Gateway. "We're quite proud to have that contract since that's a facility dedicated to FDR, our first disabled president," said Mary Ann Hildebrandt, Gateway's President and CEO. "Lots of people don't know what it is we really do."

If you'd like to become more familiar with Gateway, mark your calendar to attend the next Business-After-Hours Mixer from 5-7 p.m. June 29 at 1 Amy Kay Parkway in Kingston.

Gateway is an independent, not-for-profit that assists people in choosing, acquiring, using and maintaining the skills and supports necessary to achieve success and satisfaction. Hildebrandt said this is accomplished through integrated vocational, therapeutic, residential and business services.

The Mixer will also be a chance for Gateway to mark a milestone.

"With it being our 60th anniversary, we certainly wanted to showcase who we are and what we do and kind of get that word out," Hildebrandt said. "This is a special time for us. We started in this community 60 years ago. We're really excited to host this Mixer."

Gateway started out in Midtown Kingston and later moved to an old shirt factory on Hoffman Street. It finally settled at 1 Amy Kay Parkway, off the Boulevard in Kingston, in 1993.

"We want to show people where we are now if they've never been here," Hildebrandt said. "The Mixer is an opportunity to see our facility."

Gateway boasts its own food service operation and will be catering the Mixer, Hildebrandt said.

"I hope the business community will see how good of a job we do at that and maybe would be open to using our services for catering whether it's a breakfast or a business luncheon or some other event," she said.

Gateway serves more than 1,000 people a month through all of its programs and employs a staff of 220. When Gateway started out in 1957, it mostly helped people with physical disabilities find employment.

"We've grown over the years and now serve all disability groups," Hildebrandt said.

Gateway now also serves the economically disadvantaged and seniors.

"We continue to provide vocational rehabilitation and employment in the community," she said.

Gateway's employees offer a host of services that could benefit local businesses, including commercial cleaning, assembly and packing and food service and catering. Another interesting fact: Gateway's consumers insert the loose fliers you find in the ChamberNews, the Chamber's monthly newsletter.

Hildebrandt said business leaders have a vital role to play in supporting Gateway.

"The business community can help by being open to employing people with disabilities," she said. "We believe they have skills that a business can use."

"Certainly one of the things about our population that others may have heard over and over is that we have a reliable population in terms of wanting to work, having a strong desire to work. We try to impart to them to have a good work ethic."

If employment is not possible, Hildebrandt said she hopes businesses could provide internship and volunteer opportunities for the disabled.

"That gives our folks exposure to work," she said.

Hildebrandt said her employment staff attends the Chamber's popular breakfasts and mixers.

"We network and meet people and introduce them to who we are," she said. "These networking opportunities do give us an inroad into some of the employers in the community and to let them know what we do and how we can help them."

"The Chamber has been very supportive of Gateway."

Hildebrandt, who has been with Gateway for 40 years, says surviving for 60 years has not been easy, especially with constant funding cuts and in a time when many non-profits have folded.

"What we've had to do is learn to be adaptive, to become diverse, to look at our strengths and play on our strengths," she said. "You have to know your niche. Know what you're strong at, emphasize that and seek out opportunities in those areas."

"Things are constantly changing and you have to be aware of that and constantly figuring things out. You have to learn to bob and weave and keep on top of what's going on. You need to know who you are and what you do best as an organization."

Gateway can be reached at (845) 331-1261 or www.gatewayindustries.org.

Chamber mixers are a great way to network and promote your business. Be sure to bring plenty of business cards. This free networking event is open to Chamber members and prospective members. Reservations are a must and can be made by calling the Chamber office at (845) 338-5100 or by registering online at www.ulsterchamber.org.

Seal The Deal With Global Dwelling

Be More Comfortable, Save Money

That old Victorian sure is beautiful, but it can get a bit drafty in the winter and seep air-conditioning in the summer.

That means this is the time when you might want to call Global Dwelling, a New Paltz-based energy efficiency company that can have you feeling comfortable in your home again, while also saving you money.

"We do insulation upgrades on homes," said owner John

Kotsides. "We do energy assessments on homes to determine where the problem spots are and then we recommend upgrades and we perform the upgrades."

Kotsides, a former carpenter and owner of a home inspection business, bought Global Dwelling in 2011.

"We do a lot of crawlspace work and basement work in the spring," he said. "We deal with wet basements. It's seasonal in that way. People tend to think about insulation come fall and they think about keeping their basements and crawlspaces dry in the spring."

"Of course, everything we do that helps in the winter helps in the summer as well. If it's going to keep the house warmer in the winter, it's going to keep the house cooler in the summer."

Here's how it works: Global Dwelling will come to your home and assess the problems and prepare a report to take action. Most jobs take two to five days.

"I would say most people need help with air sealing and comfort in their home," he said. "Their homes tend to be a little drafty and we do diagnostic tests to determine where the major problems are in the house and then we do some air sealing and insulation on top of that."

The feedback is "overwhelmingly positive," Kotsides said.

"I've had people tell me that they feel a difference after the first day we're there. The minute you start sealing some of the larger penetrations into the attic and basement, people feel it right away."

While comfort may be the primary motivation, Kotsides said a byproduct is that you save money, especially if you heat your home with oil, natural gas or propane.

"If we can lower your fuel and energy bills, you're going to save a lot of money," he said. "There's a double component there and people are generally very happy when that happens."

Global Dwelling, a Dr. Energy Saver franchise with five employees, is Building Performance Institute (BPI) certified and the company works with a few government programs for the low-income, including EmPower and the Assisted Home Performance Program.

The company picks up many of its customers from the Internet, including the New York State Environmental Research and Development Authority (NYSERDA) website.

"The Chamber is always there," Kotsides said. "They're always letting us know what's going on in the community."

Global Dwelling, 33 S. Ohioville Road in New Paltz, can be reached at (845) 633-5029 or www.drenergysaverulster.com

Let The Sunshine In

Hudson Valley Sunrooms Turns 33

Ulster County has some of the greatest views of nature anywhere in the world, but if a wall stands between you and paradise ... well, you might want to call Hudson Valley Sunrooms in Port Ewen.

The company, which is in its 33rd year as a franchise for Long Island-based Four Seasons Sunrooms under the ownership of Christopher "Chris" Smalley, provides sunrooms and conservatories (with a host of roof styles) and patio enclosures.

"We have all of these older homes in the Hudson Valley and someone may have a lovely home, but they have a wall between them and the view," said Colleen McNamara-DePuy, the office manager at Hudson Valley Sunrooms. "Knock that wall out, put a sunroom out there and you can enjoy that view."

"For the most part, it's to bring the light in and to bring the outdoors in. People have referred to it as the best investment they've ever made."

The sunrooms can be freestanding, "but the economical way is to attach it to your home" and expand your space and provide a place to sit and relax with family, McNamara-DePuy said.

Some people even opt to put a pool or Jacuzzi in their sunroom. McNamara-DePuy said many New York City residents with second homes here want to enjoy nature views from the comfort of their homes and they are among her top customers.

"There are a lot of people who like to put a glass roof over them and they can still see the stars," she said. "It's like being outdoors."

"We have many happy customers throughout the Hudson Valley. They think of it as a miracle in many cases. I've heard the word 'magical' used to describe what we do."

Hudson Valley Sunrooms was recently featured in Upstate House, which said conservatories and sunrooms "add elegance and spaciousness as well as extra light, enhancing a home's value as well as aesthetic appeal."

The company is heading into its busy season as the weather turns warmer.

"We've been doing very well so far this year," McNamara-DePuy said. "Things start moving right after Christmas because people want to build in the spring and they want to get in line. It's a first-come, first-serve basis."

"We do slow down in the fall and winter. It slows, but keeps going. We install all year round. We keep going."

"Participating in the Leadership Ulster class of 2017 has been a wonderful experience. Working as a Mechanical Engineer for 8 years has allowed me to interact with many individuals within the Engineering community, but the occasions to meet and interact with people of other fields and organizations was somewhat limited. The opportunity to meet with community leaders has further opened my mind to all that the area has to offer. Leadership Ulster has also rewarded me with a great network of like-minded individuals who want what is best for our community. It has been a privilege to collaborate with the members of my class in addition to interviewing many leaders who are helping to develop the Hudson Valley to its fullest potential. I am grateful for the experience and appreciate the work of Leadership Ulster for our community."

the region has ever seen.”

The project would also come with a host of economic benefits, including several hundred construction jobs, while pumping $112 million into the local economy. Once completed, the resort would create 540 full-time jobs and 230 part-time positions.

The resort would also mean $3.7 million in annual property taxes to local municipalities and school districts; $24.85 million in annual wages; $10.6 million a year off-site spending by resort patrons; and $168 million a year in regional economic benefits.

Pasternak said his breakfast remarks would be threefold: the remaining approval process, the state’s commitment to the neighboring Belleayre Mountain Ski Center and the remaining steps before ground can be broken.

The Catskill Heritage Alliance recently filed suit to reduce the size of the resort.

“We’re confident the appeals are not substantive and we’ll deal with them in short order,” Pasternak said.

Pasternak said the state has committed $75 million to upgrade the Belleayre Mountain Ski Center under a Unit Management Plan (UMP), but that amount remains largely unfunded.

“You can’t have a first-class resort without a first-class ski center,” he said. “If we can get the state to invest in the Belleayre Ski Center, this is an economically viable project. If they don’t invest in the Belleayre Ski Center, it’s not that viable because why would you invest $400 million in a mountain ... that hasn’t had any capital invested in it in over a decade?”

The latest state budget does include $8 million for a four-season gondola.

“That’s the first big budget line item they’ve had in many years,” Pasternak said. “They were getting $500,000 a year for the last 10 years—or less. The state’s starting to pay attention and part of it is because of the advocacy of the locals, the stakeholders. They’ve all frankly raised the level of dialogue to advocate.”

Pasternak said the Agreement in Principle (AIP) with the state calls for New York to “build a first-class mountain and then we’ll go to the private sector.”

“We’re not asking them to give us money,” he said. “We’re asking them to complete their part of the AIP, which is to the benefit of 20 million people who live in New York.”

Pasternak said Crossroads has hired a real estate investment banking firm, HVS International, that specializes in these kinds of projects.

“They will embark on a marketing campaign to identify a builder-developer and equity partner,” he said. “That will only happen after all the approvals.”

The builder-developer would obtain the necessary permits and hire architects and engineers, Pasternak said.

“All that takes time,” he said. “All of the engineering probably takes you six months to a year. Then you go before all of the permitting agencies.”

Pasternak would offer no timeline as far as groundbreaking.

“I know the hurdles—I’m in the real estate business—but I can’t tell you what the timeline will be,” he said. “It’s not going to happen in ’18. I know it’s more than 18 months from now.”

“I’m going to try to energize the stakeholders to know what the hurdles in front of us are and to help us solve them. I know what the hurdles are. I’m a problem solver.”

Pasternak, who grew up in Delaware County, graduated from SUNY New Paltz before making millions in the financial world.

“I’m a creature of Delaware and Ulster counties,” he said.

Chamber breakfast programs are a great way to network with other local business leaders and stay on top of current events. Pre-registration is strongly encouraged. For more information or to register, call the Chamber at (845) 338-5100 or go online at www.ulsterchamber.org.

Hudson Valley Sunrooms

The rooms must go on a deck or a foundation and that work is done by subcontractors throughout the Hudson Valley, McNamara-DePuy said. Hudson Valley Sunrooms has a team of installers for its end of a project.

McNamara-DePuy said prices can vary depending on a host of variables, but the company offers free in-home estimates or you can drop by its showroom in Port Ewen next to the Wood'n Wheel Family Fun Center.

Like the price, the timeline for a project can vary depending on the permit process. The actual installation takes about a week, but on average a project is about two months from start to finish.

McNamara-DePuy said Hudson Valley Showrooms has installed as far away as the Summit Hotel in Lake Placid. Some of the company's local work can be seen at the former Benedictine Hospital and other locations, but the majority of its projects are residential.

McNamara-DePuy said most of Hudson Valley Sunroom's customers come from the Internet. The company's website (www.hudsonvalleysunrooms.com) features reviews and the business is also listed on houzz.com.

Customers can also go to Hudson Valley Sunroom's Facebook page to see photos and reviews.

After 33 years, Hudson Valley Sunrooms has stood the test of time and has a sterling reputation under Smalley's ownership.

"It's integrity," McNamara-DePuy said in explaining the firm's longevity. "It's being there. It's customer service. It's workmanship. That's the key. Some of our installers have been with us since we started."

McNamara-DePuy said Hudson Valley Sunrooms has purchased a booth at the Buy Local Expo several years to raise brand awareness.

"The Chamber certainly offers a number of networking events to mingle and hand out cards," she said.

Hudson Valley Sunrooms, 355 Broadway in Port Ewen, can be reached at (845) 339-1787 or www.hudsonvalleysunrooms.com.
