Leadership Washington County explores Economic Development and Tourism

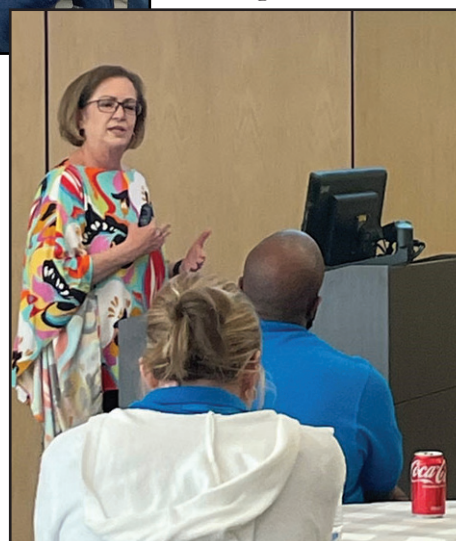

The Leadership Class spent the day immersed in all things economy, tourism and business development. Washington County is well known for its history, rolling hills of wildflowers and a thriving hub of economic development and community growth.

The day started with one such beacon of success, BRIANNAS Fine Salad Dressings. Del Sol CEO Scott Eckert led the tour and told the story of how BRIANNAS journey began in 1982 in Austin, Texas, with a simple yet revolutionary idea – to craft premium salad dressings that tantalize the taste buds. Combining the names of founders Brian and Mariann, the brand quickly rose to prominence, celebrating its 40th anniversary as a top-selling dressing worldwide. The class was treated to a crouton tasting and a bottle of dressing or marinade of their choice.

The group headed west for a stop at the next two businesses: Independence Coffee and BENCOR. Christi and Ragan Bond, owners of Independence Coffee shared fresh cups of coffee as they reminisced about their modest beginnings. Founded in 2003, the company has burgeoned into a powerhouse, roasting over a million pounds of Arabica beans annually. Their commitment to quality, sustainability, and community shines through, from their employee and customer loyalty, to investing in compostable K-cups.

On the technological frontier, BENCOR, LLC, epitomizes precision and efficiency. Specializing in circuit board manufacturing and box builds, the company's growth trajectory is evident, with expansions and plans for further development. Joe Schaefer and Toby Pickerill spoke about their diverse client base spanning agriculture, oil, medical, and aeronautics, exemplifying Washington County's prowess in advanced manufacturing.

The class headed back to Brenham for lunch at Morriss Hall, where they joined Jennifer Eckermann, Director of Tourism for Brenham. She emphasized the pivotal role of storytelling in promoting the county's attractions. Through digital marketing, social media engagement, and strategic partnerships, the Destination Marketing Organization (DMO) ensures that visitors experience the full spectrum of Washington County's offerings. "It all starts with a visit."

Washington County also has vibrant hospitality and tourism sectors. From the historic charm of B&B's to the allure of live music and cultural events, the region beckons visitors year-round. Keith Hankins, owner of Ant Street Inn, underscored the cyclical nature of tourism, with festivals and attractions drawing crowds, especially during peak seasons like spring.

No tour of Washington County's economic landscape would be complete without visiting Blue Bell Creameries. Since its inception in 1907, Blue Bell has been a cornerstone of the community, churning out beloved ice cream flavors that evoke nostalgia and delight. With a commitment to quality and innovation, the company continues to thrive, introducing new flavors and expanding its reach while staying true to its roots.

The day finished up with Teresa Rosales, Director of Economic and Community Development for the City of Brenham. With a focus on business attraction, retention, and entrepreneurship, Rosales and her team strive for sustainable growth, leveraging the county's assets while preserving its unique character. From the boardrooms to the quaint storefronts of downtown Brenham, the Leadership class left with the story of this vibrant region full of resilience, adaptation, and boundless potential.

A New Era for the Lete Phillips Exercise Program

Lete Phillips, originally from Brazil, arrived at the University of Texas-Austin in 1976 to study English for a brief three months. Little did she know, fate had something extraordinary in store for her that day. It was the day she met Kenneth “KP” Phillips, a meeting that would spark a beautiful love story destined for the pages of a book.

Following their marriage in Brazil on September 18, 1976, Lete and KP returned to Brenham in January 1977. In no time, Lete recognized a pressing need for an exercise program catering to individuals in their 40s and beyond. This realization led Lete to commence her fitness training at the Dr. Kenneth Cooper Aerobic Institute in Dallas, Texas, where she developed a holistic program focusing on the integration of body, mind, and soul.

In addition to her training at the Dr. Kenneth Cooper Aerobic Institute, Lete also became a member of IDEA (International Dance Exercise Association), undergoing training with renowned exercise physiologists

Ken Alan and Len Kravitz.

For 47 years, Lete has been dedicated to teaching fitness classes, conducting personal training sessions, and generously volunteering her expertise wherever it is needed, advocating for the health and wellness of all individuals. Her remarkable journey even led her to train with the Brenham CUBS in 1987, where she made history as the first woman to enter the realm of football, breaking barriers in what was traditionally considered a “man’s world.” Subsequently, Lete was approached to assist in implementing a mandatory exercise program for the Police Officers under Chief Ken Carnes.

As Lete reflects on her incredible journey, she believes it is time to pass the torch to Amy Lischka, her esteemed head instructor. Amy, who has been teaching at the Studio for 21 years, is poised to carry on the legacy of the Lete Phillips Exercise Program, continuing to offer its wonderful program exclusively for women. The team of trainers, including Melanie Baker, Sarah Flisowski, Sharon Barreras, and Tracye Lassus, eagerly look forward to supporting Amy’s leadership and nurturing care at the Studio.

The Chamber will forward your "e-message" to all members, as long as it meets certain criteria. For non-profits, it should not have a strong-sell for sponsorships or donations. The message should be newsworthy, typically about an upcoming event. For regular business, it should also be about upcoming special events, as long as there is no purchase required for the reader to experience the event.
