LETTER FROM THE MAYOR

As mayor of the city of Seymour, I would like to welcome you. Seymour has the unique advantage of being located near two major metropolitan areas, while retaining the country charm of a rural community.

The excellent quality of life in Seymour is exemplified by our outstanding school system, wonderful neighborhoods, and many recreational opportunities. Seymour's rich history is illustrated throughout the community and etched in the hearts of its citizens.

Firms looking to relocate and expand will find that the skilled labor force, access to major transportation routes, and the community's proactive approach to economic development gives Seymour a competitive advantage over other communities in the region. For those who may be interested in making Seymour your home, I encourage you to find out what our community has to offer.

I hope this guide provides you with beneficial information and assists you in understanding why we feel Seymour is such a great community. The city of Seymour is dedicated to providing efficient quality service by working in partnership with individuals, neighborhoods and businesses, to enhance the quality of life and to create a healthy, vibrant community in which to live, work and visit.

Sincerely,
MATTHEW NICHOLSON

CONNECTION

Check out our organization!

We are a business advisory network serving the area through education and marketing to support the success of its members.

Our numbers are strong... Since 2016, we trade an average of $300,000 to $350,000 in business referrals annually. In this structured, positive and supportive environment, we believe in word-of-mouth advertising and we meet every week to pass referrals.

Visitors are Always Welcome!

Seymour Business Connection was formed to provide a means for its members to grow their individual businesses. Members share with each other the opportunities for networking and mentoring; coaching and education; business connections and referrals. Ask if your business category is available... we are exclusive in that we only allow one person from each profession.

Wednesday Mornings

We meet at 7:45 AM in the Smith Law Services Building, 2nd Floor Conference Room, 121 N Chestnut St, Seymour, IN.

First Wednesday of each month is a less structured breakfast meeting, open to anyone held at Seymour's Cracker Barrel.

Small town charm. Convenience. Quality schools. Close to the interstate. These phrases sum up just a few of the reasons Seymour continues to be a desirable place to live and do business. Residents of this Midwestern city enjoy Hoosier hospitality in the close-knit community at the crossroads of southern Indiana.

Seymour is a wonderful choice for a new home. Neighborhoods are within walking distance to city parks, recreational sports facilities and public and private schools. Homes in Seymour offer something for everyone. From affordably priced starter homes to large custom-built luxury retreats, homeowners can find just what they are looking for.

Apartments and condos provide empty-nesters, seniors and first-time home buyers or renters many housing options. Downtown homes, carefully preserved, include tree-lined streets and easy access to shopping.

Farther out, suburban areas provide newer housing stock with plenty of amenities. On the outskirts, Seymour offers beautiful acreage with a variety of old and new homes.

Competitive home prices and strong resale values, combined with affordable property tax rates, have enticed many homebuyers to make Seymour home.

Its moderate climate, with four beautiful seasons, is enjoyed throughout the year. Seymour is strategically located with access to 20 major cities within a 400-mile radius, including Nashville, Louisville, St. Louis, Chicago and Cincinnati, providing easy access to commuters and businesses alike. SEYMOUR HISTORY

This view of the interurban terminal facilities in Seymour shows the dray used to haul freight, some waitresses and other workers in front of the station restaurant, and one of the cars inside the terminal.

Jackson County was formed in January 1816, nearly a full year before Indiana obtained statehood. It was the 14th county in the state. 2016 was the state, county and county seat's bicentennial. The first white settlers in Jackson County were in 1808, 1809 and 1810.

Seymour was platted in 1852. James Shields from Tennessee received a grant for 1,200 acres and moved to Indiana in 1816. The Shields family was among the first six families in the Seymour area. They built a block house on the property that is now the old city cemetery. In 1820, he received a land grant for the ground he had homesteaded in the area later called Mule Crossing. The Shields and Reno families were neighbors. The Shields, Blish and Tipton families were all connected.

A son, Capt. Meedy W. Shields, inherited his father's land holdings and developed it into a prosperous farm. During the latter 1840s, the J&I, a north-south railroad connecting the Ohio River at Jeffersonville with Indianapolis, was built crossing the Shields' farm. Then in 1852, an east-west railroad was being surveyed through Jackson County, and Shields persuaded the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad to run through his property instead of through neighboring Rockford. John M. Kester, the largest landowner in Rockford, a town of 500 two miles north of Seymour, was bargaining for the railroad along with Meedy Shields.

Shields wanted the rail line to run through his farm, so he offered to build a 3-mile fill through the marshlands to the west if Mr. Seymour, chief contractor and civil engineer for the O & M Railroad, would survey the road through his farm. He offered to name the town for the engineer and turn over large lots to the railroad for a depot, a round house and a repair shop. The terms were accepted by the railroad, and the route moved. Soon Seymour became the junction of two major rail lines.

Because the J&I refused to stop in his new town, Shields (by now a state senator) secured the passage of a safety bill requiring all trains to stop at all railroad intersections. Now the two railroads, which met at Seymour, were required to stop, and trains exchanged freight and passengers as well. Seymour quickly became a major center of commercial activity. The city was incorporated in 1864 with a population of 1,553.

1852 – Meedy and Eliza Ewing Shields platted the city of Seymour. The first lots were sold in November 1852, and Travis Carter bought the first lot. He eventually built his home, the current Red Cross building.

Eliza Shields had the first schoolhouse built between Fifth and Sixth streets on Ewing Street.

family had been in the mill business for 200 years on the East Coast.

1865 – Seymour was officially chartered as a city.

1916 – Blish sent the largest cargo of flour ever exported to British troops in France during World War I, 81,200 sacks totaling 9,000 tons.

The Reno Gang

The railroad has a rich history in Seymour and Jackson County and, at times, a shady one. Seymour was the site of the world's first moving train robbery. On Oct. 6, 1866, members of the Reno Gang, headed by brothers Frank, Simeon, William and John, boarded the train east of Seymour and proceeded to throw the trainmen off and rob the baggage car at their leisure as they sped through Seymour.

The Reno family's homestead was near Rockford, and they were considered wealthy landowners at the time. Using Rockford as their hideout, the gang would traipse across five states until vigilantes brought an end to their short, but infamous, career. They were never tried for the 1866 train robbery because the only eyewitness was mysteriously murdered before he could testify.

Several members of the gang were hanged by area vigilantes near Hangman's Crossing in Seymour roughly two years after the infamous robbery and subsequent train robberies. Three of the Reno brothers were hung in a jail cell in New Albany by area vigilantes. One brother, John, was sentenced to a Missouri prison for other crimes and returned to Seymour after his release. The secret of the gang's missing loot lies buried with the Reno brothers in their graves in the old Seymour Cemetery.

Seymour's Underground Railroad History

Yet again, Seymour's railroad ties proved to be historical. Seymour's documented history of the Underground Railroad includes an incident involving a slave named Alexander McClure. On April 14, 1860, McClure, living in Nashville, Tennessee, arranged for friends to place him in a box and ship him to "Hannah M. Johnson, in care of Levi Coffin" in Cincinnati. At Seymour, McClure's box was being transferred to the southeast train and broke open. McClure was discovered, arrested and extradited to Tennessee. He implicated three men who helped him in his escape attempt, Nathan James, Alfred Savage and an unidentified man.

James was an escaped slave and was sold back into slavery. Savage was a slave who introduced McClure to the third conspirator, a white man, and he was given 15 lashes. Levi Coffin was also questioned about his role and denied any knowledge. No Hannah Johnson was ever found. McClure was found to be living and working in Nashville, Tennessee, after the Civil War.

proximity to three major cities in an hour. Location is the key behind many companies locating to Seymour. Home to distribution centers, automotive parts manufacturers, logistics and a pharmaceutical company, Seymour has an excellent workforce in place. Transportation connections have proved to be a real blessing to the city, which now has more than 20,000 residents.

Throughout Seymour, parks and many recreational activities are awaiting your visit. Shields Park is home to the city pool and a handicap accessible playground; both are popular attractions during the hot and humid months. Shelter houses and the bandstand are welcome venues for family reunions, picnics and even the annual Fourth of July celebration, complete with a fireworks show at Freeman Municipal Airport. Ball diamonds, soccer fields and playgrounds at multiple park locations are frequent tournament sites for traveling teams. The newly constructed Grassy Fork Trail winds through a wooded section of the Freeman Field Recreation Area and is popular with running, walking and cycling enthusiasts.

Festivals are a large part of the culture of Seymour. Oktoberfest celebrates the German roots of the community. The three-day festival in the beginning of October continues to be the largest annual event in Seymour. Both Scoop the Loop and Cars and Guitars draw many car enthusiasts to downtown.

The Farmers Market provides families a place to shop for their favorite locally grown produce throughout the summer months, and it includes so much more than just food. Music has a rich history in Seymour and is celebrated at all festivals, including the CityJam events.

The arts are highly celebrated, since Seymour is home to the Southern Indiana Center for the Arts. It features traveling art displays, permanent displays by local artists, art classes and a historic operational print shop. Visiting the brewery, local winery or any one of the local restaurants can nicely round out your day of arts. Nature enthusiasts start here on their journey to Muscatatuck National Wildlife Refuge and the Jackson-Washington State Forest.

Whether you're into music, cars, nature or activities to enjoy with the family, Seymour has something for everyone. Come see all we have to offer and you'll fall in love with the community!

Call for your appointment today!

Dr. William Kirtley & Dr. Jason Stuckwisch are excited to announce the addition of Dr. Connor Kirtley to our dental team. Dr. Kirtley completed his Bachelor of Science degree in Chemistry from Indiana State University where he graduated Summa Cum Laude and was the recipient of the Hines Memorial Medal. In 2020 he graduated from Indiana University School of Dentistry. A native of Seymour, Dr. Kirtley played baseball and basketball for Seymour High School. Dr. Kirtley is honored and humbled to serve the people in his hometown and to provide patients with a positive, well-informed dental experience that allows them to achieve not only a beautiful and healthy smile, but to experience the far-reaching benefits oral health has on one's self-confidence and overall quality of life.
