Chamber pledges support for investment in infrastructure and job creation

The Overland Park Chamber recently submitted a letter to Mayor Gerlach and City Council Members pledging the Chamber's support for the City's continued public/private investment in infrastructure and job creation. Signed by the members of the Chamber's board of directors representing companies from small retailers up to major employers such as Sprint, the letter notes record levels of redevelopment and outstanding growth attributable to the partnerships between and among elected local government, city staff and the Chamber.

Recognizing the delicate balance of competing fiscal management and investment interests, the letter notes that Overland Park has a proven track record of success in the advancement of infrastructure, public safety, job creation and redevelopment while maintaining the lowest first-class city tax mill levy in the state.

Businesses and residents want to locate and invest in a community that is financially sound and invests in itself, the letter explains. "For 57 years Overland Park has been that place and your Chamber fully supports the City's leadership in continuing to fund that quality into the future."

The letter recognizes the City Council's judicious and analytical investments in job creation with a long range view of increased tax revenue for the community, appropriate benchmarks and clawbacks to ensure performance.

Examples of successful public/private investments in Overland Park presented in the letter include the increase in jobs and property tax receipts from construc-

A 50-year partnership that reaps benefits

Last month I presented to the Mayor and Overland Park City Council a letter from the Chamber's Board of Directors to reinforce the business community's support for public investment in infrastructure, public safety and job creation. The letter was presented during the Council's analysis of the City's budget for 2018, but could just as appropriately have been presented on any Monday evening. The letter (click here to view), reflects upon the past success of our public/private partnerships and provides examples of the return these investments have yielded for our community.

In recent months, there has been some commentary during public hearings at Council meetings about the level of our city's taxation, and we wanted to address this head-on. The Chamber for the past 50 years has provided consistent messaging on this issue, particularly given that our members pay taxes both at the residential and commercial rates. You demand value for your dollars invested, and historically, as now, our expectation is public funds invested in infrastructure such as roads and interchanges, public safety and our quality of life yield a return on investment greater than those dollars spent. Our Board unanimously supported the 2012 increase in the mill levy as we preferred a tax increase to service eliminations that would have impeded business success and the quality of life we need to attract and retain talent.

Businesses and residents want to locate and invest in a community that is financially sound and invests in itself. For 57 years, Overland Park has been that place, and since our founding 50 years ago, the Overland Park Chamber has fully supported the City's leadership in funding that quality into the future. We thanked the Council for their longstanding partnership with the business community and excellent stewardship of our dollars that has produced a nationally-ranked city and the lowest-first-class city tax mill levy in the state. We reiterated our support for the City's continued investment in infrastructure, public safety, quality of life and job creation into the future.

The letter from our Board contains several examples of public/private partnerships through the years that exemplify why our history of investing in job creation and economic growth has been prudent. Beginning in 1997 with the investment in Universal Underwriters, now known as Zurich, the examples demonstrated that this Council and others preceding it have applied the economic tools available on a careful and analytical basis that has proven successful and advantageous to us as a community and for taxpayers.

While it's politically popular to talk about "corporate welfare" or "winners and losers," this investment, the way Overland Park applies it, has been a win-win all around. It's a win for companies as they grow, it's a win for the community as new jobs and investment are created, and it's a win for taxpayers as more taxes are generated than originally assessed. The analysis of these projects provides a picture of the effectiveness the City's partnership garnered in terms of jobs and financial growth.

We believe our community is at a crossroads as we enter into our visioning process for the next 20-30 years. As the voice of business, we have pledged our continued support and partnership in our mutual missions to create jobs and enhance our quality of life amenities. Your Chamber Board members individually signed the letter to collectively encourage and endorse continued public investment in Overland Park's infrastructure, public safety and economic development as key to our success.

tion and expansion by major employers including US Bank, Black & Veatch and Universal Underwriters Group (now Zurich).

The letter referenced a 2014 Kansas Legislative Post Audit study that analyzed a statewide sample of 42 projects (including 20 in Johnson County) that concluded the public/private investments generated more business activities in Kansas than an across-the-board tax cut equal to the incentive would have and that local programs contributed a return on investment of $46.80 per $1 invested.

The Chamber Board, in conclusion, pledged its support for public partnerships with the business community and stated the key to our future is continued investment in Overland Park's infrastructure, public safety and economic development.

Chairmen in 1980s continued Chamber momentum

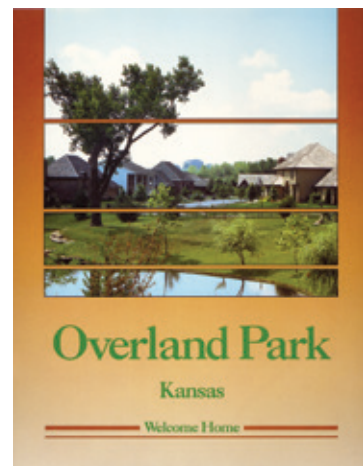

Chairmen in the 1980s continued to lead the Overland Park Chamber along the path their predecessors had thoughtfully laid out in the 1960s and 1970s, ensuring that the organization's priorities continued to focus on quality of life, economic development and public policy that led to a vibrant business environment. This month we reflect on Chamber chairmen from the 1980s.

1980 – Steve Rose was publisher of the Johnson County Sun, the local newspaper originally founded by his parents. Steve led the chamber in its push to retract the occupational tax. After a prolonged and contentious effort, the City agreed to rescind the measure. During his time on the Chamber board, he also was a strong advocate for promoting Mary Birch to Chamber president after the death of Dick Molamphy. After Steve sold Sun Publications, he established Metro-

1982 – Kirby Deeter helped found Varnum Armstrong Deeter L.L.C. in January 1969. During his time as chairman, the Chamber worked to defeat a proposal to raise zoning and development fees in the city. Kirby also pushed to expand economic education for students in the Shawnee Mission and Blue Valley school districts. In addition, he helped to significantly improve relations with the Overland Park City Council and the Planning Commission. Today, Kirby continues to work as a principal and broker at Varnum Armstrong Deeter LLC.

1983 – Phil Kline was a founding partner of Shafer and Kline, Civil Engineers (now Shafer, Kline and Warren, which also is a charter member of the Cham-

Although he was president in 1983, the president-elect, Jim Pirner, initially served in his place while Phil served his first term as a member of the Kansas House of Representatives. His chairmanship saw the beginning of Leadership Overland Park as well as a strengthened relationship with the Johnson County delegation. Following his term, Phil continued to serve in the state legislature until 2001. He passed away February 19, 2014.

1984 – Jim Pirner worked for TeleCable of Overland Park. During his time as Chairman, Mary Birch was promoted to president of the Chamcommunity for a number of years before retiring to Colorado with his wife.

1985 – Michael H. Fragale was with Sutherland Lumber Company. During his time as Chairman, the Shawnee Mission School District saw a great deal of growth and change, in terms of number of students and expectations. Fragale encouraged the Chamber to strengthen its ties with both the community and neighboring chambers. Michael eventually retired, but continues to call Overland Park home.

1986 – Ron Nelson was owner of Overland Park Garden Center, which he started in 1964. A charter member of the Chamber, this business now is known as Family Tree Nursery.

During his time in office, the City, the Chamber, and the Convention and Visitor's Bureau began to

Sponsor Spotlight:

Improving life in the communities we serve

More than 130 years ago, a small group of forward-thinking friends believed electricity was more than a novelty. Every day, our employees honor our founders' standards: innovation, entrepreneurship and community leadership.

As an investor-owned, regulated electric utility, we serve more than 800,000 customers in 47 northwest Missouri and eastern Kansas counties. With a service area of about 18,000 square miles, it takes more than 3,000 miles of transmission lines, 24,000 miles of distribution lines and more than 400 substations to deliver power to our customers.

Our region also benefits from:

- Community Impact - KCP&L employees volunteer nearly 20,000 hours each year to support the neighborhoods in which we live and work. Employees also supplement our corporate community investments with more than $1 million of their own money.
- Environmental Focus - In all our sustainable efforts, we strive to improve, protect and conserve beyond what the law asks of us. One way we can ensure reliable and affordable electricity is by offering energy efficiency solutions that reduce what's needed to power our customers' lives. We also invest in renewable initiatives to build a foundation for the future. We ensure our coal-fired plants are among the cleanest in the country. And we develop environmental conservation efforts to create fertile habitats for wildlife.
- Economic Support - Our Economic Development Team is ready to help your business grow and prosper. Our team offers a deep understanding of how the needs of your energy infrastructure drive economic development. Our knowledge of local business dynamics, energy costs and incentives will save time and conserve resources.
