MULTIMILLION-DOLLAR MAKEOVER PLANNED FOR CITY GOLF COURSE

The City of West Palm Beach and the PGA of America have signed a term sheet that lays the groundwork for the redevelopment of the city’s golf course. Seth Waugh, CEO of the PGA of America, provided a progress report to the Government Affairs Committee and Trustees of the Chamber.

The project will include an 18-hole golf course, a short course, putting course and practice range. There will be a clubhouse with many amenities for golfers and the public. Future plans may include a South Florida PGA headquarters building. Waugh estimated construction costs between $20-$25 million. He stressed that this plans may include a South Florida PGA headquarters building. Waugh estimated construction costs between $20-$25 million. He stressed that this project will be run and managed by a 501(C)(3) not-for-profit foundation comprised of local citizens, neighbors and business professionals with experience in golf management.

Proof of capital must be provided to the City by October 1, 2021 with construction completed by March 2023. The Committee expressed the project will be run and managed by a 501(C)(3) not-for-profit foundation comprised of local citizens, neighbors and business professionals with experience in golf management.
