FEMA is updating the National Flood Insurance Program's (NFIP) risk rating methodology--it's called Risk Rating 2.0 and it could increase or decrease the cost of flood insurance for your clients and customers.

Beginning Aug. 1, current NFIP policyholders can contact their insurance company or insurance agent to learn more about what Risk Rating 2.0 means to them and how it will impact the cost of their insurance policy. Phase 1 of the new policies will begin October 1, 2021.

SCR wants you to be familiar with this new system before then, which is why we have invited David Maurstad, Chief Executive NFIP to help guide you through the new changes.

Join us on July 8th from 10 am - 11 am to get the inside scoop on this important update. Will your clients and customers start paying more for flood insurance in 2022? Join us to learn more about Risk Rating 2.0 with David Maurstad.

Neither FEMA nor NFIP endorses any non-government entities, organizations, or services.
