Risk Management

As we remember the two year anniversary of Hurricane Harvey, Florida is now threatened by Hurricane Dorian. Many are currently getting prepared for a potential disaster that will affect them at home and at work. In addition to hurricanes, earthquakes and wildfires, we all need to prepare for smaller-scale disasters, such as a broken pipe that floods your store or an electrical fire that destroys your inventory. Any of these catastrophes can put your small business out of commission—possibly for good. The key to survival is all about preparation and planning.

Do you have an exit strategy for when it is time for the business to close? What about when a key employee departs from the organization? What happens when your supplier closes? I encourage us all to take time to think about risk management.

“Risk management: Better to have it & not need it, than to need it & not have it.” -unknown
