cell and eventually kills it.

Although manual cleaning is still the mandatory cleaning process in many institutions, human error and fatigue could hinder the overall effectiveness, risking unnecessary transmission. Hence, it should be augmented with UV disinfection to ensure complete elimination of pathogens across the premises including all high-touch areas such as tabletops, inner drawers, phones, armchairs, doors, cabinet handles, light switches, etc.

Given the utmost significance of sanitization and disinfection in the current times, OMRON's UV-equipped mobile robots yield a great value to organizations who are struggling to find the right, effective, less labor-intensive and long-term solutions to ensure their environment is germ-free.

OMRON is committed to solving various global societal issues while ensuring the safety of all stakeholders including customers, business partners, employees and their families, and preventing the future spread of infection.
