Award-winning headshot photographer

Nina Pomeroy Photography — Do you hate to have your picture taken? Whether it's lack of confidence, fear of not liking your photo or generally thinking you are not photogenic, most people shy away from the camera. This prevents you from showing your true personality and authenticity. "It's my job to direct, pose and guide you so that you don't have to feel uncomfortable in front of the camera ever again," says Nina Pomeroy. Being photogenic is not a gene you're born with, it's about being in the hands of an experienced professional who can capture all of your best angles and expressions. Nina is celebrating 22 years in business and her studio is located at 4725 First Street, Suite 262 in downtown Pleasanton. Visit her online at ninapomeroy.com.
