FROM THE PRESIDENT'S DESK

On January 29, the beloved children's character Elmo sent a kind-hearted check-in to his followers on social media. He asked, "Elmo is just checking in! How is everybody doing?"

The response was unprecedented, with about 200 million views and over 15,000 responses, ranging from humorous to grim. "Life is hard," one person replied. "Not great, Elmo. Not great," said another. Themes of loneliness, depression, and anxiety were common. It became an international news story and began a more extensive conversation about mental health.

Elmo followed up on the overwhelming response with another post. "Wow! Elmo is glad he asked! Elmo learned that it is important to ask a friend how they are doing. Elmo will check in again soon, friends! Elmo loves you." #EmotionalWellBeing

In recognition of Mental Health Awareness Month in May, we want to continue the conversation started by Elmo, so we are devoting the April Issue of our Connections magazine to mental health in the workplace.

We know that 50% of our members are at the Small Connect level, which means they have between 1 and 5 full-time employees. These organizations rarely have dedicated human resource departments or access to an employee assistance program, and our goal is to provide information about mental health resources available to employers and employees.

We are also using this opportunity to announce a one-hour session on mental health in the workplace at the Mental Health Board on Wednesday, June 5, at 3:30 p.m. There will be no cost to participants, and we encourage all members to join us to learn more about mental health in the workplace and better equip themselves with the tools needed to help their employees thrive in the workplace. This fall, we will sponsor a one-hour QPR Suicide Prevention Training at no cost to participants.

This project is a collaboration with the McHenry County Mental Health Board, NAMI McHenry County Chapter, Advocate Good Shepherd Hospital, Northwestern Medicine, and Independence Health and Therapy.

A special thank you to Sue Dobbe-Leahy for championing this joint venture and advocating for mental health services, Leonetta Rizzi of the McHenry County Mental Health, and Abbey Nicholas of NAMI McHenry County Chapter for their help in putting together this issue.

We are better together.

Your McHenry County Mental Health Board & Workplace Mental Health

by Leonetta Rizzi, ED

Mental health in the workplace has grown in importance and recognition in recent years. McHenry County Mental Health Board is raising awareness of the critical role a supportive work environment can play in employees' lives.

In the past year, McHenry County Mental Health Board has expanded our reach and is committed to Workplace Mental Health in our 3-year strategic plan. With training sessions in the workplace, more individuals are prepared to assist others and may prevent a situation from becoming a crisis.

At the 2023 McHenry County Economic Development Corporation annual dinner, workplace mental health resources were introduced to the business investors to encourage small and large businesses to support mental health. It is our goal to continue to expand outreach through the chambers of commerce and other business networks.

Participating in this Crystal Lake Chamber Connections publication is in accordance with our strategic plans. We invite you to join in the effort.

In addition to training, which can build skills and offer local resource information, the focus on mental health builds a better workplace. Studies show that employers who prioritize mental health see increased productivity, reduced turnover rates and the overall creation of healthy environments.

Your business can benefit from workplace mental health trainings. Attend QPR Training (Question, Persuade, Refer – a Suicide Prevention Training) hosted by the Crystal Lake Chamber or have a session at your business for groups of 25 or more.

QPR is only a one-hour training. Or if you have time for a full day class, we recommend Mental Health First Aid training.

Participate in Mental Health First Aid to understand, identify and respond to signs of mental illness and substance use disorders. More on training and support resources can be found in this newsletter.

What issue or topic does your workforce want more information on? Employers can fill out a form on the MCMHB website via the QR code to request a specific topic for workplace mental health.

Consider joining the many businesses which are recognized with the Bell Seal Certification. Offered by Mental Health America, <https://www.mhanational.org/bestemployers>. The Bell Seal for Workplace Mental Health national certification program recognizes employers committed to creating mentally healthy workplaces. Led by Mental Health America's rich history in research and advocacy, the holistic evaluation of employer practices considers the entire employee experience.

Your McHenry County Government is a recipient of the Bell Seal. Consider the appeal this recognition will have for your business in attracting and retaining employees.

Fast Access to Mental Health Resources

Every individual in McHenry County can utilize three free resources at any time, for no charge. The MCHHELP App, 9-8-8 Crisis Line and 2-1-1 United Way Human Services number.

MCHHELP App is a quick click to reach immediate crisis support and information via text or voice, 24/7. Users will have anonymous access to trained counselors in times of anxiety, depression, stress or need. Use is free and confidential. The app also has a comprehensive resource directory of services. Downloaded MCHHELP for free from the App Store, Google or www.MC708.org.

Encourage your employees and contacts to download the MCHHELP App and use it when they or someone they know needs help.

9-8-8 Suicide & Crisis Lifeline is a National Suicide and Crisis Lifeline which provides 24/7, free and confidential support for people in distress, plus prevention and crisis resources for you or your loved ones, as well as best practices for professionals in the United States. Call or text 988 or chat 988lifeline.org

2-1-1 is offered by United Way of McHenry County and is available 24/7 to make referrals to health and human service agencies: mortgage, rent, and utility assistance, food banks, child care, health services, job training, clothing, emergency shelter, counseling and much more.

The McHenry County Mental Health Board can assist with questions regarding what mental health, intellectual/developmental disabilities, and substance abuse resources are available in McHenry County. Visit www.MC708.org or scan our QR Code for a direct connect.

We also encourage any resident to please attend our Town Hall on May 9, 2024 at 5pm at our MHB office located at 620 Dakota Street in Crystal Lake. It is an opportunity for the Mental Health Board of Directors to hear from the public on needs and gaps. We want to hear from you! Just promoting our Town Hall to your employees shows you care about Mental Health in the Workplace.

Mental health in the workplace is important because it directly impacts employee well-being, productivity, and overall workplace culture. Additionally, addressing mental health in the workplace can help reduce stigma and create a more supportive and inclusive environment for all employees.

Make a commitment this May to prioritize Mental Health in the Workplace for the long run!

Mental Health Recovery is Possible: How to Climb Out of the Darkness

The stressors in life continue mounting between work, family, finances, relationships, and various societal strains. These factors coupled with a mental illness can seem like a deep valley one cannot find their way out of. The behavioral health professionals at Northwestern Medicine (NM) Northwest Region want you to know there is a way to find help, hope, and healing. There are many life lines that exist within the NM hospital system to provide people with the right assistance for any stage of mental health care needed.

Anyone any age, who finds themselves in a mental health emergency, can be evaluated in person at the Psychiatric Emergency Services (PES) located in Northwestern Medicine Woodstock. There, dedicated mental health professionals are available 24/7 to provide mental health assessments. At NM Huntley and NM McHenry hospitals, evaluations are completed in the emergency departments through telemedicine. Once an evaluation is complete, it is determined what level of care is appropriate for the individual and care is provided accordingly.

Adults, 18 and older, who are not in a crisis but who have been experiencing an increase in mental health related symptoms, can call to schedule a mental health assessment for NM's Partial Hospitalization Program (PHP) or Intensive Outpatient Program (IOP). Individuals should call 815-334-5090 to schedule. In the assessment, a master's level clinician will meet with you to discuss care options that best suit your specific needs.

Once someone is assessed at any entry point, a level of care is determined and services may include:

- Linkage or referrals to outpatient mental health services in the community
- Linkage or referral to a Partial Hospitalization Program (PHP) or Intensive Outpatient Program (IOP) that meets the person's individual needs.
- Inpatient hospitalization in which arrangements are made to secure placement on the behavioral health unit at Northwestern Medicine Woodstock or another behavioral health facility with availability.

Northwestern Medicine Woodstock offers both inpatient behavioral health and PHP/IOP programs. Inpatient level of care offers a safe and secured environment with 24/7 nursing care where patients remain on the unit until they are cleared by their provider to go home. The goal of inpatient treatment is to provide safety and stabilization. The NM PHP/IOP programs offer intensive therapeutic programming with full day sessions from 9 a.m.-3:30 p.m. or half day sessions from 9 a.m.-11:45 a.m. or 12:45-3:30 p.m. There is a mental health track and a co-occurring track for people dealing with both mental health and substance use issues. The goal of PHP/IOP is to provide stabilization and improve daily functioning so a person can transition back to work, school, and/or family duties.

In both inpatient and PHP/IOP programming group therapy is the main focus along with individual counseling. Psychoeducation and process groups with trained or licensed mental health professionals help individuals sift through their life struggles. Some of the therapies provided are cognitive behavioral therapy, dialectical behavioral therapy, expressive and art therapy, family therapy, yoga, spirituality, coping skills education, goal setting, recovery planning and many others. Medication management by a licensed psychiatric provider is offered and individuals receive a personalized treatment plan and after care plan tailored to their unique needs. A mental illness can be difficult to manage but with the right care and support, healing and recovery are achievable.

Let the team at Northwestern Medicine Northwest Region climb with you on your journey.

The Juggling Act: Caregiving's Impact on Employees and Workplaces

By John Buckley,
Executive Director Independence Health & Therapy

Across the nation, our workforce is facing a growing challenge: the increasing burden of caregiving. There are 53 million unpaid caregivers in the United States and 73% of them are still working. To apply national stats to McHenry County, there are 40,000 unpaid caregivers in McHenry County, of which 29,200 are working with nearly 22,000 caring for a senior. Caregivers make up almost 20% of the County's workforce. This dual role can have a significant impact on both the employee's well-being and the overall health of the workplace.

The Toll on Employees

Caregiving responsibilities often come at a cost to the employee's physical and mental health. Caregivers experience higher rates of stress, anxiety, and depression.

Studies show that upwards of 70% of caregivers have clinically significant symptoms of depression with 25% to 50% meeting the diagnostic criteria for major depression. This increases when the care recipient's health declines – 40% of those caring for someone with dementia suffer from depression and emotional stress.

On average, a caregiver will spend more than $7,200 per year on out-of-pocket costs caring for an elder. That number is higher for Millennial caregivers.

Average out of pocket costs caring for an elder

The Toll on Employers

A 2019 study by Harvard Business School reported the gap in understanding the impact of caregiving in the workplace. Few employers understand the impact caregiving has on the workplace - only 24% of employers reported caregiving affected worker performance.

However, 73% of employees reported having some type of caregiving responsibility. Of that group, 80% reported their caregiving responsibilities impacted their ability to perform their work. In a recent AARP study of working caregivers, 53% reported having to go in late, leave early or take time off; 15% had to reduce their hours, 6% gave up work altogether.

Further, employers underestimate the spectrum of care responsibilities. They focus on the impact of caring for a newborn or adopting a child, a sick child and the daily needs of children, which are very real. However, 1/3 of employees who left a position cited caring for the daily needs of an elder. It tends to be the employees with the higher titles and greater responsibilities who leave for caregiving needs. Many more employees with titles like vice president or higher left work due to caregiving needs. This was true across all age ranges.

The Financial Impact

It is estimated that the cost to a business to replace an employee is six to nine months of that position's salary. Caregiving has been shown to reduced productivity by an average of $5,600 per employee. When you combine the costs associated with turnover with those of reduced productivity, there is a significant hidden cost associated with caregiving.

It can cost 6-9 months of salary to replace an employee

The Untapped Potential

Despite the challenges, caregivers bring a valuable set of skills and experiences to the workplace. They are often highly organized, resourceful, and adaptable, qualities honed through managing complex care situations. Caregivers can also be more empathetic and compassionate colleagues, fostering a more positive work environment.

With the right support, caregiving employees can be thriving members of the workforce. They are often highly motivated and loyal to employers who understand their situation. Companies that implement caregiver-friendly policies can benefit from increased employee retention, improved morale, and a more engaged workforce.

Strategies for Supporting Caregivers in the Workplace

There are a number of steps that employers can take to support working caregivers and mitigate the negative impacts of caregiving on the workplace:

- Flexible Work Arrangements: Offering flexible scheduling options, such as compressed workweeks, part-time work, or telecommuting, can allow caregivers to manage their work hours around their caregiving responsibilities.
- Paid Time Off: Providing generous paid time off policies allows caregivers to take time away from work for appointments, emergencies, or self-care without financial penalty.
- Employee Assistance Programs (EAPs): Offering confidential counseling and support services through EAPs can help caregivers manage stress, depression, and other mental health challenges.
- Dependent Care Assistance Programs (DCAPs): Helping employees offset the cost of childcare or eldercare through DCAPs can alleviate some of the financial burden of caregiving.
- Resource and Referral Services: Providing access to resources and referrals for eldercare, childcare, and other caregiving services can help employees navigate the complexities of their situation.
- Building a Culture of Support: Creating a workplace culture- the Harvard study referred to it as the Caring Company - that is understanding and supportive of caregiving needs is essential. Fostering open communication and empathy among colleagues can go a long way in helping caregivers feel comfortable and supported.

By implementing these strategies, employers can create a work environment that is not only beneficial for caregivers but also contributes to a more productive, loyal, and resilient workforce.

The Beneficial Impact of Integrative Medicine on Mental Health

*By Debbie Stamm, APRN, ANP-BC, nurse practitioner
The Center for Health & Integrative Medicine at Advocate Good Shepherd Hospital*

In today's fast-paced and often stressful work and home environments, mental health has become a significant concern for many. If you have wondered if there is another way to support your mental health, rest assured, you are not alone and there is! The Center for Health & Integrative Medicine at Advocate Good Shepherd Hospital provides a holistic approach to optimizing your mental health and wellbeing.

What is integrative medicine?

Integrative medicine combines conventional medical treatments with evidence-based complementary therapies to treat and heal the whole person. By focusing on holistic well-being and personalized care, an individual's whole health – physical, mental, and emotional – is addressed.

How can an integrative medicine approach support your mental health?

A key advantage of integrative medicine is the emphasis on the interconnectedness of the mind, body, and spirit. This approach recognizes that mental health is influenced by various factors including physical health, movement, nutrition, sleep patterns, stress levels, connection, spirituality, environment, relationships and social support systems. By addressing these underlying factors, integrative medicine provides sustainable solutions for managing mental health issues as patients truly feel seen, heard, understood and inspired to begin a healing journey.

In addition, integrative medicine emphasizes a personalized, team-based approach to care. Our team is led by fellowship-trained Integrative Medicine Physician, Dr. Lori Walsh, and includes clinicians with specialized training in acupuncture, massage, yoga, and behavioral counseling, working together and with the other providers on your care team to develop a coordinated and meaningful health and wellness plan for you.

What therapies are offered within the Center for Health & Integrative Medicine?

In addition to integrative medicine provider consults, there are a variety of therapies offered that can benefit mental health including acupuncture, behavioral counseling, medical massage, and yoga. Acupuncture helps to rebalance the body's energy and has been shown to provide benefits of reduced stress, anxiety and depression, improved sleep quality, improved cognitive function, mood stability and emotional resilience. Behavioral health counseling with a licensed mental health professional is a key component to exploring root causes and managing mental health conditions. Both virtual and in-person therapy sessions are offered with our Licensed Clinical Professional Counselor. Massage therapy relieves tension and stress that has accumulated in the body over time. Finally, yoga has been shown to decrease stress, anxiety and depression while promoting relaxation and emotional balance.

Is integrative medicine right for me?

The short answer is, yes! Integrative medicine can benefit anyone at any age, whether you are seeking support in managing a mental or physical health condition or are looking to promote wellness and prevent disease.
