I recently attended the Eighth Circuit Judicial Conference in Des Moines. The Eighth Circuit has a judicial conference every year. Attorneys are invited to attend every other year. South Dakota had an excellent turnout this year. The conference always attracts interesting speakers. Among others, this year we heard from Attorney General Jeff Sessions and Supreme Court Justice Neil Gorsuch. The next conference will be held in Omaha in August 2020. Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg is tentatively scheduled to speak in Omaha.

A number of law students attended Justice Gorsuch’s presentation. He emphasized to them the importance of being kind to the Court, opposing counsel and litigants. This is one of the great things I have observed in trying cases in South Dakota for nearly 40 years. For the most part, there is a high degree of civility amongst members of the South Dakota Bar. Although South Dakota attorneys competently represent their clients, they generally do so in a professional manner which does not involve dirty tricks and incivility.

Although some of you may have heard these stories before, a couple of personal experiences of mine regarding cases I tried against Scott Heidepriem demonstrate the way I believe things are oftentimes done in South Dakota. In one case, Scott was attempting to put some medical bills into evidence. I objected and asked the judge if I could speak to Scott because I thought there was some issue regarding the admissibility of some of the bills, the amount of which probably totaled less than $100. When I raised the issue, Scott reminded me who had bought dinner the night before. I immediately withdrew my objection.

Scott and I were later involved in a highly contested medical malpractice case in which the end result of the medical treatment provided to Scott’s client had not been good. The jury returned a somewhat surprising verdict in favor of the defense. After the verdict, Scott told me that he had been updating his elderly mother on a daily basis regarding the progress of the trial. He told me that when he reported the verdict to his mother, her response was, “You lost that case?” If we did not have a congenial relationship, Scott would never have provided me with that information. In the end, he got the last laugh when the verdict was reversed on appeal.

I encourage all of you to be cooperative with opposing counsel. We have all had clients who want us to do whatever we can to make life miserable for the opposing party and its counsel. That is not the way things have traditionally been done in South Dakota and I hope that continues.

We are continuing efforts to get attorneys signed up for the new lawyer referral service. Information regarding participation in the program can be found in the Newsletter. I urge you to consider being listed in the directory.
This month’s Newsletter contains an article from Bar Commissioner Jennifer Williams. Please review her thoughts about service to the Bar.

In last month’s Newsletter, I provided a photograph of myself that proved I once had hair. In this month’s Newsletter, my photograph shows that I was even cute at one point in my life. Although I had to go a long way back to find such a photo, I was able to do so with the help of my mother.

This month I would like to focus my message on mentorship. A mentor is someone who has the experience or knowledge you seek, and can help in your current role or assist with future opportunities. Fortunately, many of us have a mentor or mentors who have taken the time to guide us professionally. Mentorship is one of the most important facets of our profession. It is how we share and provide information and knowledge between generations. It fosters professional growth and advancement and mentorship can form trusted relationships that can transcend barriers. This guidance is invaluable, especially as the practice of law continues to change.

As you may know, the YLS oversees the operation of the Bar’s Mentorship Program, The Hagemann-Morris Young Lawyer Mentorship Coin Program (HMMCP). The program was born out of the dedication and hard work of past State Bar President Bob Morris and past Young Lawyer President Sarah Sharp-Theophilus, who during their 2009-2010 tenure created a mentorship coin project. In 2010, the program was officially renamed the HMMCP, in honor of the mentorship relationship between Bob and his classic mentor, the late University of South Dakota Law School Professor, John F. Hagemann.

The ultimate objective of the HMMCP is to pair young lawyers with mentors who share a common interest. The hope is that the mentor will share candid and insightful guidance to their mentee. New lawyers are asked to complete an application for mentor, either online (https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/KKR8XXR) or by paper application. That application is then submitted to their Young Lawyers Section Board of Directors Circuit Representative. Based on the criteria within the application, the YLS Circuit Representative then contacts prospective mentors to accept the new lawyer as a mentee. New lawyers can also make suggestions on who they would like as a mentor or directly request an attorney to serve as their mentor. To facilitate the mentorship and mentoring plan, the YLS provides each participant with a copy of the HMMCP Guidebook, which covers the parameters of the relationship. This guidebook can then assist the new lawyer and mentor on what information would be most beneficial to new lawyers as they begin their legal careers.

Each new young lawyer who enters profession is provided two mentorship coins (either by request or at the statewide swearing-in). The young lawyer may then present one of the coins to their mentor and keep the other coin for themselves. We hope that the Mentor Coin becomes a treasured and respected representation of “knowledge and friendship” that will last a lifetime. We strongly and firmly believe that the Mentor Coin represents integrity, dedication to the core values of the law, excellence in the profession, and service to our profession and community before self.

Thank you to those who choose to take part in this process. If you have taken on the mission of mentoring a new attorney, your time and dedication is appreciated! If you are a young attorney who serves as a mentee, you are appreciated. It takes all of us to lift up the profession and make it the very best. I believe that these relationships are one of the strongest attributes of our State Bar. I have experienced first-hand how mentorship can influence someone’s path for the better. I myself blessed to have extraordinary mentors within our Bar. In every phase of my legal journey, there has been someone willing to invest in me and teach me. I cherish each of these relationships; they have made this journey unforgettable.

“A mentor is someone who allows you to see the hope inside yourself.”

Before I leave you, I would like to fill you in on what the YLS has going on this month. This month the YLS will be assisting USD VLEG with two veterans’ legal clinics. These clinics will be held twice this month.

September 13th in Hot Springs at the VA Hospital from 9-3pm.

September 14 in Rapid City at the RC Legion from 9-3pm. (Please note the location and time change from previous publications.)

If you are someone, you know is able to assist with the clinics by volunteering your legal services, please contact: Austin Schafer (Austin.Schaefer@coyotes.usd.edu).

We encourage you to reach out to any of our Board members to voice your concerns and ideas. It is important to us that we provide you with quality programming and opportunities. Your 2018-2019 Board of Directors are:

President- Tamara Nash (Sioux Falls)
Vice-President – Nathan Chicoine (Rapid City)

Many South Dakota lawyers have risen to the challenge of making SD Bar Foundation a favorite charity. Such generosity deserves public acknowledgement. Therefore, the Bar of Directors has created a "Fellows" program to not only make such acknowledgement, but also to provide opportunity for more of our members to participate and determine their personal level of professional philanthropy. Participation can be on an annual basis or by pledge with payments over a period of time. All contributions made to the "Fellows" program will be deposited in the Foundation’s endowment account managed by the SD Community Foundation - famous for low management fees and excellent investment returns. Donations to the endowment are tax deductible and a perpetual gift to our profession and the educational and charities the Foundation supports.

Jennifer Williams
Bar Commissioner

Hello! I am Jennifer Williams. Reed asked that I write a bit about myself, why I am involved in the State Bar, and how my involvement has benefited me.

I am a wife, mother, daughter, sister, friend, and one of your at-large Bar Commissioners. My undergraduate degree is in elementary education. I love to teach and learn. For the past thirteen years, I have worked for the South Dakota Supreme Court. Today, I am the law clerk for Justice Zinter. Before Justice Zinter, I clerked for Justice Konenkamp for nine years. I have also clerked for Justices Kern, Wilbur, and Severson. I consider myself extremely fortunate to have worked for so many strong intellects and difference makers.

The Justices taught me by their examples that the title of lawyer comes with great responsibility. We have a duty to be involved, to better our communities, to better ourselves, and to be there for one another. I first became involved in the State Bar as an at-large member on the Young Lawyers Board. I worked my way through leadership and became the State Bar Young Lawyer President for 2014-2015. Although I aged out of the Young Lawyers Board, I have stayed involved in the State Bar. I have had many people ask me why I continue to be involved. Indeed, it can be time consuming and frustrating. But isn’t that true for many things worth doing? It’s worth it to me because I get to meet a lot of people, I have the chance to make a difference (which I can’t make if I don’t get involved), and I am provided with many “ah ha” moments. One of my favorite quotes sums it up: “You never really understand a person until you look at things from his point of view . . . until you climb inside his skin and walk around in it.” – Harper Lee. The State Bar is a system that affects us all as lawyers, and I am involved because I want to see things from another’s point of view.

The biggest benefit from my involvement in the State Bar has been the mentors and friends. No one should attempt to navigate life as a lawyer without a good arsenal of quality people. Being involved in the State Bar has introduced me to lawyers I otherwise would have never met. I don’t make a habit of visiting Aberdeen or Belle Fourche, but there are some pretty great lawyers there who are now my mentors and friends. Other benefits include: growing me up, kicking me in the pants, and helping me know I have a voice. There is no doubt my involvement in the State Bar has made me a better person and lawyer.

LAWYERS ASSISTANCE COMMITTEE

Your Bar Leadership has been concerned that members needing help with chemical dependency or mental health issues may be reluctant to call State Bar Headquarters to inquire where to seek help. Phone calls seeking help for themselves or a loved one or a partner have always and will continue to be kept strictly confidential. That said, Bar Leadership has determined that a referral agency independent of the State Bar staff may reduce any reluctance to call. Thus, beginning July 1st, we have entered into a contract with Disability Rights South Dakota. Both LCL and LAC committees have provided names and contact information for referrals. You will be provided with the names and phone numbers and proceed to call whomever you select from the appropriate list.

Disability Rights South Dakota: 605-224-8294 or toll free 800-658-4782
Phone calls to Disability Rights of SD are kept strictly confidential.

IS THE LAWYER REFERRAL SERVICE RIGHT FOR ME?

LRS Committee

Are you looking for new clients? If so, the Lawyer Referral Service is right for you! The Lawyer Referral Service is not a free or reduced-fee legal service program. We are simply the right website for clients to find the right lawyer.

In the past, potential clients seeking legal representation were encouraged to call the State Bar Office for a referral. We have replaced that outdated system. Now, potential clients will be directed to our new website at www.findalawyerinsd.com.

Since launching the website in late June, thirty-two lawyers have enrolled. And while we have not yet released our public media campaign (this is coming soon), potential clients are already using our website and have been matched with enrolled lawyers in their area.

Ready to give it a try? Enrolling is easy:

- Send your completed enrollment form to the State Bar Office along with a $50 payment for the annual service fee
- Create your referral profile on our website at www.findalawyerinsd.com
- Choose up to three practice panels, and an unlimited number of subpanels within your practice panel group (additional practice panels may be added for $20 per panel)
- Begin receiving matches in your area

Enrollment in the Lawyer Referral Service is a great way to grow your practice, help potential clients seeking legal representation, and support the mission of the State Bar.

Yes, Sometimes a Referral Can Come Back to Haunt You
Mark Bassingthwaighe, Esq.

Lawyers make referrals. It’s something that comes with the territory. For some, making a referral is almost a daily occurrence. They are often made after work is declined. Staff may make them in response to a cold call or give one to a client who needs a service that the firm doesn’t provide. Referrals are sometimes made during dinner conversations, at social events, or after a presentation given to the general public. Names may be passed along to family members, friends, a colleague, and to good clients. After all, we do want to make sure our good clients are well taken care of! Too often however, referrals seem to be made without any thought of the potential malpractice exposure. Is such casualness justifiable? Unfortunately, the answer is sometimes no.

Nationwide, malpractice coverage statistics vary geographically and over time due to any number of reasons. Some lawyers do not feel that malpractice coverage is necessary. They prefer to protect their assets in other ways. Others simply can’t afford the coverage, particularly during economic hard times. I have even had a few lawyers tell me that they believe having malpractice coverage simply invites claims. As they see it, if they have no insurance no one will bother suing them. Regardless, this is a roundabout way of sharing that contrary to popular belief not all lawyers are insured for malpractice. In fact in a few states the percentage of uncovered lawyers has been estimated to be as high as 50%. This reality begs the question of what would happen if a lawyer made a referral to another lawyer who was uninsured and that lawyer eventually made a mistake? Might the referring lawyer be exposed? You bet. There are ways that liability can be found. It’s a hunt for a deep pocket and it will be framed as negligent referral. The good news is that avoiding this type of claim is relatively easy.

The most dangerous type of referral is one that results in a referral fee and it doesn’t matter if the fee was expected or simply offered as a gift. Acceptance of the fee can and will bring to the referring attorney liability for the other attorney’s work. If a fee is offered, the best advice is to decline it or suggest that the referral fee be refunded to the client because referral fees are too easily viewed by the client as payment for legal advice to have them work with the other attorney.

If your practice is to accept referral fees, proceed fully aware of the risk involved and be up front with the client about the arrangement. Remember, when you share fees you share liability. Rule 1.5 of the Model Rules of Professional Conduct states that a division of a fee can only occur if the division is in proportion to the services performed and the client agrees in writing. In addition, the fee must be reasonable and each lawyer will assume joint responsibility for the representation. This rule clearly requires that a referring attorney who will be accepting a referral fee inform the client of the presence of the referral fee and obtain written consent to the fee division. Given all this, it would seem to be prudent to stay in contact with the other attorney in order to monitor critical dates and see that work is completed on time because there is no free lunch here.

Two side notes are in order. First, prior to ever making a referral where a referral fee is expected, consider making certain that the attorney you are referring to has malpractice insurance in place and that the limits are adequate for the size of the matter being referred. Do not accept verbal verification of coverage. There are attorneys who will say they are insured in order to obtain the business. Ask the other attorney for a copy of the declaration page to the malpractice policy prior to ever making this kind of referral. Second, occasionally an attorney who has recently been disbarred will seek to refer clients and request a referral fee. If the referral happened to be made while this attorney was in good standing with the bar, payment of the referral fee would be acceptable. If this attorney is seeking to make the referral and asking for a fee after being disbarred, the payment of a referral fee would be prohibited under Model Rule 5.4(a) which prohibits the sharing of fees with a non-attorney.

That said, acceptance of a referral fee is not the only method of creating a liability from a referral. Referrals to specific lawyers or a referral made with a promise such as “Attorney X is the finest personal injury plaintiff attorney in the area and always gets great results” can also create liability. To avoid exposure for a negligent referral claim, the rules are simple. When referring anyone to another lawyer always provide a minimum of three names and make no promises. Of course, suggesting the individual contact a state or local bar referral service would be another very safe practice.

Sometimes, however, we do wish to make a specific referral if for no other reason than to see that a good client is properly taken care of. If negligent referral claims are a concern for you, consider documenting adequate malpractice coverage by asking the other lawyer for a copy of the declarations page to her malpractice policy prior to making a specific referral. Why? It’s because one shouldn’t run with assumptions. Negligent referral claims are about coverage, not competency. Competent lawyers can and sometimes do make a mistake or miss a deadline and again, not all lawyers are insured.

One other type of attorney referral that can potentially create a serious problem is the referral made to an officemate in an office-sharing situation. By their very nature office sharing arrangements create added vicarious liability for every lawyer in the space. A simple referral to an officemate just increases the difficulty of avoiding this liability should a claim ever arise. In this situation it is particularly important to give a minimum of three names. It is fine to include an officemate in this list. Just be certain to disclose that one of the names provided is an attorney in the suite, make no promises about the suitemate, and be certain that the client understands that this attorney is completely independent. It would also be advisable to document how this referral was made in some fashion. Finally never make a referral to an officemate who is uninsured or underinsured. This risk simply isn’t worth it.

Now here is the interesting twist to the issue of negligent referral. Many referrals are made to non-clients. A lawyer’s duties to non-clients are minimal and thus negligent referral claims arising out of such referrals are few and far between. The real concern is when an attorney refers a client to another attorney or, perhaps more frequently, to another professional. Making matters worse, words of assurance are also often shared with the client in this situation perhaps as a way to make sure the client follows through. To underscore this concern, consider an estate planner who regularly refers clients to the same CPA and is surprised to learn, after the CPA has made an error, the CPA has no errors and omissions coverage. The client, now harmed, may very well look to the estate planning lawyer for a recovery based upon her legal advice to work with that particular CPA. Here, following the above advice becomes even more important. The same rules should apply whenever making a referral to an existing client. Always provide a minimum of three names, make no promises, and verify that an errors and omissions policy is in place if a specific referral is preferred.

Remember that these rules not only apply to referrals made after work is declined. They also apply to referrals made at a dinner party, in an e-mail to a friend, in response to an e-mail from someone contacting you as a result of a visit to your firm’s website, in a casual conversation following a public presentation, on a chat site, or in response to an inquiry over the phone.

The next issue concerns staff. Occasionally a firm will have a sound referral policy in place that all attorneys understand and follow yet a staff member may be completely unaware of the reason the policy is in place and thus not follow the rules in every instance. There is no ill will here, just an honest desire to try and see that clients get the best help possible. Their motivation is to provide good service. This staff person will make a specific referral to an attorney or other professional whom they know and think highly of blissfully unaware of the associated risks. For clients who are upset, staff may even try to reassure them by making certain “harmless” promises about the receiving attorney. “Attorney X is a very good attorney and well respected by our firm.”
If attorney X misses a statute date and is uninsured or underinsured, the client may not agree with the statement that attorney X is a good lawyer and they may want to hold the firm liable for their loss.

Make certain that all staff understand your firm’s policy and procedure for referrals and also the reasons why such a policy is in place. Develop a referral list with three names for the various types of matters the firm will refer out and make it available to everyone in the office. If this list doesn’t cover a referral request, have the staff pass the matter on to one of the attorneys, politely decline by stating the firm does not make referrals, or have staff refer to the state or local bar referral line.

Last but not least, an often overlooked source of potential liability for negligent referral claims may come from links on your firm’s website. If there are links to other sites, an appropriate external links disclaimer should be prominently displayed near these links. The disclaimer should simply state that the firm has provided these links for the convenience of users of the site and that these links do not constitute an endorsement of the linked websites, or of the information, products, or services contained therein.

In reality negligent referral claims are not a significant problem for malpractice carriers. Yet when they arise, and they do, these claims can be costly. Given that the actions that can be taken to avoid this type of claim are highly effective and quite minimal, there really is no reason not to take the prudent course of action and follow the advice shared here.
David E. Morrill
Aug. 11, 1932 - Aug. 14, 2018

David E. Morrill of Sarasota Florida, age 86, died on Tuesday August 14. He was surrounded by the love of his family.

He grew up in Sturgis, South Dakota and he knew at an early age that the practice of law would be his career. He earned his Juris Doctorate at the University of South Dakota, where he also met Jean Harder, his bride, best friend and partner of the last 62 years. After law school, he practiced with his father in Sturgis. He later moved to Rapid City, representing Black Hills Power and Light Company, now Black Hills Corporation, for 30 years of his pre-retirement career.

Upon retirement to Sarasota, Florida, David gave more than 15 years of pro-bono service to Legal Aid of Manasota. Through service and action, he lived his conviction that every person has the right to equal access to the courts.

He is lovingly remembered by his wife of 62 years, Jean (Harder) Morrill, his children, Sarah (Denny), Becky (Tim), Judy (Dave), Leslie (Bart), his 15 grandchildren (one, an angel who preceded him in death), and 9 great grandchildren. He is also loved dearly by the surviving 3 of his 7 siblings.

A service to celebrate his life of love will be at Pine Shores Presbyterian Church on Saturday, August 18 at 1:00pm.

Memorial donations may be given to Legal Aid of Manasota or the Pine Shores Presbyterian Church. Published in Herald Tribune from Aug. 16 to Aug. 17, 2018
Immigration law and immigration consequences become relevant in other areas of law when non-citizen clients are involved. To assist other practitioners, the immigration committee has put together general information on some of these situations. The committee’s goal is to generate awareness of some of the more common non-immigration legal issues that are problematic for the client’s status or future status options. Please see previous editions of the bar newsletter for an introduction to this series of articles.

Protection Orders

Even though protection orders often do not involve criminal proceedings, a non-citizen respondent can face serious immigration consequences if a protection order is entered against him or her. Violations of a protection order are even more serious from an immigration standpoint.

First, the issuance of a protective order can negatively portray a non-citizen’s moral character. Moral character is a factor in many immigration proceedings, including citizenship applications, waiver applications and bond hearings.

Second, admitting to certain types of abuse, even outside of a criminal proceeding, can serve as a bar to immigration admission. Immigrants other than non-permanent residents can be found inadmissible to the U.S. for admitting to the essential elements of a crime involving moral turpitude. Certain types of child abuse, spousal abuse and sexual abuse have been found to be crimes of moral turpitude. Determination of moral turpitude is an evolving area of immigration law, and it is advisable to consult an immigration attorney regarding that issue if it arises.

For the reasons above, a non-citizen party who is the subject of a child protection investigation, harassment order, or order for protection should avoid any negative judicial or administrative finding such as maltreatment or domestic abuse. If it is likely a judge would grant a protective order against a non-citizen, the safest option is to deny the abuse alleged and request that the decision-maker refrain from making any findings, while agreeing to the no-contact order. The standard of proof for a protection order is lower than the criminal standard of proof. Therefore, if there is a risk the order would be granted with findings, any resolution that avoids findings of abuse is preferable for a non-citizen. Be aware that court transcripts and plea agreements often must be presented in immigration proceedings, so the respondent should avoid any admission of guilt, either written or oral, if possible.

Violations of a protection order also can cause serious immigration repercussions. Under the Immigration and Nationality Act, Section 237(a)(2)(E)(ii), a foreign national is removable (deportable) if a court determines that he or she “has engaged in conduct that violates the portion of a protection order that involves protection against credible threats of violence, repeated harassment, or bodily injury to the person or persons for whom the protection order was issued.” A conviction for a violation is not necessary to trigger the removal ground. If a non-citizen is facing a charge for violating a protection order, he or she should contact an immigration attorney immediately, so the immigration attorney can work closely with the criminal defense attorney to minimize the risk of negative immigration consequences. Often, criminal defendants are not aware of the severe immigration repercussions of protective order violations. Ensure that your client is aware of the potential immigration consequences of a violation before he or she agrees to a protection order.

Divorce

The I-864 affidavit of support is filed with the government when a spouse petitions to bring a foreign spouse, (or other relatives), to the U.S. The I-864 affidavit of support is a contract with the federal government to provide any support necessary to maintain the foreign spouse or relative at a certain income level. Divorce does not end the support obligation incurred by the I-864. The obligations end only if the sponsored foreign national becomes a U.S. citizen, has worked, or can receive credit for, 40 quarters of coverage under the Social Security Act, no longer has lawful permanent resident status and has departed the United States, is subject to removal, but applies for and obtains, in removal proceedings, a new grant of adjustment of status, based on a new affidavit of support, if one is required, or dies.

Did your client transfer or gift a controlling interest of an entity to a family member but still acts as though he/she has control? Does he/she write checks without authorization from the controlling members? Does he/she use company property without paying a fair market rent? If so, the IRS could ignore the transfer of the controlling interest citing IRS Section 2036. By ignoring the transfer, the IRS could consider your client’s ownership controlling, which would not only disallow discounting but could “pull” the entire asset transferred back into the estate. If the intent of the transfer was to move wealth out of your client’s name, make sure to “dot the is” and “cross the t’s” to ensure the IRS doesn’t get a sense that your client really possesses control despite the transfer.
