A new year brings new opportunities

Not one to spend a lot of time looking backward, I like to look at what's ahead: a new year and new opportunities.

Your Chamber of Commerce is coming off a very productive, restorative year. My predecessors began the transformation when they hired Debi Tavey, our energetic and skilled Chief Executive Officer. It continued with successful efforts to re-establish our financial foothold. And it moves on with a hands-on, upbeat, determined Board of Directors.

Building on groundwork laid in 2016, your Chamber will promptly tackle these critical issues facing businesses in Suisun City and Fairfield:

The Homeless: Our CEO is an integral member of a task force looking for local and regional solutions. Her emphasis will be the impact of the homeless population on business owners and customers. While a comprehensive long-range strategic plan is developed for a regional approach to emergency and transitional housing, your Chamber's focus will be immediately tackling the deleterious consequences of stolen shopping carts, panhandling and those without a place to live. Ours will be a compassionate helping hand to those who need a hand up, but a firm approach to lawbreakers.

Economic Development: As our economy shows signs of new vigor, your Chamber will be urging city and county officials to take calculated, smart and responsible advantage of revived interest in residential and commercial development. The key to a great community is a balance between homes, jobs and commercial expansion. Protecting what we have, while growing the local economy, is essential.

Landscape of Change: As the political machinations keep us all guessing what is coming next, your Chamber's Business Education Committee and its Advocacy Council will monitor the changes coming in business regulations, transportation and health care for employers and employees. It is no understatement to say the times they are a changing. Your chamber will speak out and be heard when proposals are harmful. Likewise, it will be a cheerleader of change for the better.

Dear business owners, Chamber members and those not yet members: Please do not hesitate to contact us when an issue arises that will have an impact – positive or negative – on our business environment and on our quality of life in Suisun City and Fairfield.

And here's to a prosperous new year in 2017.

Growing 2017

into a Brighter Tomorrow

With the start of the new year comes opportunities for new growth and exploration, a chance to try something new while holding on to the hope that the leap into the unknown will lead to great success. Change can be both frightening and exciting. It is also a pivotal component for a business to grow. In this issue of the Voice of Business, we're highlighting local businesses in Fairfield and Suisun City that are taking giant leaps this year while also bringing new opportunities to their community.

BY BRIANNA BOYD

Guests look over the wine list during the soft opening of the Sonoma Harvest tasting room.

HAVE YOU DISCOVERED FAIRFIELD'S NEWEST TASTING ROOM?

The Sonoma Harvest Wine & Olive Oil tasting room is located on Chadbourne Road in Fairfield.

Sonoma Harvest has been producing gourmet olive oils and vinegars in Fairfield since 2003. For years, visitors would come in daily to the old administrative offices on Watney Way and ask if there were tastings available. Every time, Allison Serrano, the chief operations officer, would have to say no.

Although their product went to restaurants and retailers around the country, there was no opportunity for people to sample and purchase the olive oils and vinegars in Fairfield. When Sonoma Harvest began building its new, 99,000-square-foot facility – more than double the size of the old building – at 770 Chadbourne Road in July 2015, Serrano knew that was about to change.

Fast-forward a year and a half and the new Sonoma Harvest bottling line has been going strong for six months and the tasting room, which opened just before Thanksgiving, is gaining momentum as word spreads it is here.

The 2,000-square-foot tasting room has a rustic, country atmosphere to it, with unique ‘wine country’ merchandise on the tables along with the oils, vinegars and Sonoma Harvest’s brand new line of wines. The inaugural vintage includes the 2014 Cabernet Sauvignon, the 2015 Pinot Noir, the 2015 Chardonnay and the 2015 Rosé.

“Olives and grapes go hand in hand,” said tasting room manager Jenny Lavell. “The California olive oil industry has been booming and we are in the perfect location. Suisun Valley has almost as many olive trees as vineyards. When we finally had the chance to open up our tasting room, we were very excited about the opportunity to pair the two together again.”

The tasting room is a flavorful experience for all ages. While only adults over 21 can sample the wine, guests of all ages can try the olive oils and balsamic vinegars. The tasting room also includes a children’s area, complete with a television, seating area and games, so younger guests can be entertained while parents sip and sample.

“Half the people we have coming in are from Jelly Belly and they’re exhausted with the kids running around,” Lavell said. “They want their time.”

The wheels are already turning as the tasting room team maps out plans for 2017. First up is setting up the traditional olive mill in the room adjacent to the tasting room. A glass window separates the two spaces and although it is dark now, once the wheel is in place, guests will be able to watch a fully functional olive mill create fresh olive oil and then sample the oil when it is finished.

On the other side of the milling room is a barrel room, which is already being rented out for special events. Lavell said the plan is to have public events in the barrel room beginning in the spring months.

“I don’t want to hint too much because nothing is fully on paper but we are hoping to get some fun events on the calendar in the spring and summer months,” she said.

Gary Bacon and his wife, Ying Ni, opened the Suisun Valley Inn in July 2016.

HOSPITALITY BOOM LEADS TO HOTEL RENOVATIONS AND NEW BEGINNINGS

'The new renovations have helped to bring occupancy numbers into Fairfield that we have never seen before. These new enhancements have wowed our returning guests and will surely do the same with new visitors.'

– Christian Wentworth, the director of business development for the Fairfield Conference and Visitors Bureau

It's an exciting time to book a vacation to our region.

Hotel renovations – from the big-name brands to the mom-and-pop-owned bed and breakfasts – are skyrocketing across the United States, as hotel owners and management work to ensure facilities are up-to-date with the evolving needs of the technologically savvy, millennial and social travelers. This trend is no different here in Fairfield and Suisun City.

Almost all of Fairfield's 18 hotels are either in the middle of or have completed a full renovation, including Hilton Garden Inn, the Courtyard by Marriott, both Motel 6 properties, La Quinta Inn & Suites, Staybridge Suites, Homewood Suites and Fairfield Inn & Suites. Suisun City's Hampton Inn & Suites also finished a renovation last year.

"The new renovations have helped to bring occupancy numbers into Fairfield that we have never seen before," said Christian Wentworth, the director of business development for the Fairfield Conference and Visitors Bureau. "These new enhancements have wowed our returning guests and will surely do the same with new visitors."

There is also a 'new kid on the block', with the Suisun Valley Inn opening its doors to visitors last July. Accommodating up to 12 guests in five suites, the inn, located in the heart of Suisun Valley, gives both out-of-town visitors and locals looking for a 'staycation' away from their home hospitality opportunities outside of the traditional hotel.

The Suisun Valley Inn is located just off Suisun Valley Road on the historic, 27-acre Monroe Ranch. The majestic house, built in 2004 in the style of George Washington's Mount Vernon, is surrounded by acres of vineyards and squash, with a huge backyard and gazebo.

Gary Bacon and his wife, Ying Ni, purchased the property in February of 2016 with the intention of turning it into an inn. The two devoted five months to getting the property ready for visitors and they welcomed their first guests in July 2016.

"Most of our visitors so far have been larger groups of people who have stayed for a weekend or an even longer period of time," Bacon said. "Most have been family vacations but we have done some bachelorette parties. We've also done three or four groups with local people who live in Fairfield, Vacaville or Vallejo. They've wanted to have a family reunion or a big birthday party and they want their grown children and grandchildren there too. To have this place that is big enough to accommodate such a large group is a great alternative to having it at your own home."

The inn includes a large dining room and kitchen downstairs in addition to all the suites upstairs. Each of the rooms has a theme that is representative of local landmarks and historical events and include the "Green Valley Room," "Twin Sisters Suite" and the "Suisun Creek Suite."

The kitchen, featuring two full-size ovens, is available for guests to use and visitors are welcome to bring their own food to prepare meals. Bacon also plans to partner with local chefs who will be available to prepare private dinners for guests, making their stay at the Suisun Valley Inn even more special.

In many ways, the inn matches the vision the home's original builder, a descendent of James Monroe, had in 2004.

"He had seven grown children and his idea was to build this place on their family farm," Bacon said. "It was a place where all his children could come with their own children and they could all be together."

INTERACTIVE EXHIBITS ENHANCE JELLY BELLY'S BRAND NEW TOUR

Fairfield's beloved Jelly Belly Visitor Center became even sweeter in 2016 when the company unveiled a brand new tour in June.

Now, the leaders behind the famous Jelly Belly jellybean promise additional visual elements will be added to the tour in 2017 that will further enhance the experience – although they're remaining coy on what those might be.

John Jamison, the vice-president of retail operations, said he does not want to spoil the surprises. But he knows guests will love what the candy company has planned.

"Stay tuned for more details," he added.

Meanwhile, with the new factory tour being just six months old, many guests are still experiencing it for the very first time. While the tour has gone through some renovations in the past, this is the first significant remodel since the tour corridor above the factory floor was constructed in 1999.

It's estimated that close to 500,000 people visit Fairfield's Jelly Belly Visitor Center every year and most take part in the free, one-fourth-mile-long tour above the factory floor.

One of the most significant changes to the tour is that it is now self-guided, allowing guests to go at their own pace as they observe the candy-making operations on the floor below or look at wall exhibits set up along the route highlighting company history and current operations. The new tour also includes big screen HD/4K videos that give an up-close view of machinery and candy-making, with interviews from members of the Rowland family.

New interactive exhibits include a corridor of smell stations; Bean Blitz, a computer-generated soccer experience where guests block large virtual Jelly Belly jellybeans hurling their way; and 'Test Your Belly Flop IQ,' where visitors use their hand-eye coordination to swipe misshapen or wrong-colored jellybeans from a flat-screen monitor.

Of course, the Jelly Belly factory tour remains free of charge – and the samples are, too! The free public tours run daily, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Anheuser-Busch Brewery tasting room manager Jennivive Soriano, far left, and her team. The Fairfield brewery has plans to add a restaurant to its tasting room in 2017.

THE ANHEUSER-BUSCH TASTING ROOM TEAM REVEALS THEIR SECRET

After months of preparation, the tasting room team at Anheuser-Busch Brewery are finally ready to unveil what they have planned in 2017.

The tasting room of the Fairfield brewery, one of the most popular attractions in the region, is adding a restaurant in the first quarter of 2017. Soon, visitors to Anheuser-Busch will be able to enjoy a cheeseburger, a pulled pork sandwich, chicken wings and other popular dishes paired with Budweiser beers from the extensive tasting menu.

Anheuser-Busch already has a full kitchen inside the brewery and the future chef and staff will prepare the food there while customers are served inside the tasting room.

“We’re also looking to pair food items with beers that are here on tap,” said Jennivive Soriano, the tasting room supervisor. “We’re in the process right now of hiring a chef. It’s very exciting. I think it will add another element to the tasting room that we don’t have right now while also hopefully drawing even more visitors to our brewery.”

The tasting room is already an impressive gathering place and Soriano is excited to see it grow even more once the restaurant opens.

“We’ve been here for three years now,” she said. “It’s one of my favorite spots. I walk in here and I still enjoy how beautiful it is.

“But food has been an element we’ve been missing,” she continued. “Now, we will have another attraction for guests to come and visit. If there’s a great football game on, we’re going to drop the projector screen so it’s right in front of you while you are enjoying our beers and our food. If you’re renting the room for a party, now we will have a food vendor on site for you.”

The tasting room hours will expand beyond the current 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. tour schedule, although those details have not been ironed out yet.

Also on tap for Anheuser-Busch in 2017 is a brand new craft beer tour. The brewery constructed additional fermenters in 2016 – they are located right next to the iconic ‘Budweiser’ logo – to accommodate the new bottling line specifically for craft beers produced in Fairfield. The tour, expected to launch this spring, will include craft beer tastings and a behind-the-scenes look at that specific line.

Meanwhile, all the brewery events people already know and love will continue into 2017. These include the ‘Party in the Tap Room’ and ‘First Fridays’ concert series, Paint Nite’s on the first and third Thursday of every month, and Oktoberfest in the fall.

Tax measures help city leaders plan for a brighter tomorrow

It goes without saying that the city leaders of both Fairfield and Suisun City are breathing a collective sigh of relief as they embark into 2017.

Voters in both Fairfield and Suisun City overwhelmingly passed tax measures in November's general election that will support local funding needs without raising taxes on citizens nor requiring deep cuts to city budgets. Both Fairfield's Measure P and Suisun City's Measure S passed with approximately 69 percent of the vote. Measure P extends a one-cent sales tax originally green-lighted by voters in 2012 for 15 more years, while Suisun City residents adopted their own one-cent sales tax with the passage of Measure S.

For Suisun City City Manager Suzanne Bragdon, the elation felt on Election Night was the culmination of over a year of preparation and planning that led to a thorough education campaign to illustrate to her residents why a tax measure was so vital to the community's future.

"It's a huge relief," she said. "Measure S is not here to replace all the losses that have occurred because of the state takeaways, but it is so critical to help us move forward and not fall further behind. I think the residents got that and we are just incredibly thankful. Our residents deserve this and we want to provide the level of services our residents deserve."

For the first time in many years, Bragdon and her staff can move forward with budget planning for the future without fears of deep cuts and reductions on the horizon.

She had known from the start it was not going to be an easy process to pass Measure S, which makes the strong approval that much more exciting. To her knowledge, Suisun City has never passed a general tax measure before. But she also knew how important this measure was to the city and its residents.

“We started the strategic planning process for this in January 2016 and what we basically found is that our budgets have continued to be status quo for the last four years, meaning that we haven’t been able to bring back any of the cuts that occurred during the recession or when redevelopment was taken away,” she said. “As all the costs to do business go up, if your revenue is not matching that, you are basically going backwards and that was a big concern for us.”

The results from a third-party survey conducted in late 2015, focused on residents’ satisfaction with city services and performance, showed 63 percent would support or likely support a one-cent sales tax measure.

“But you can’t hang your hat on that,” Bragdon said. “It’s important to keep the issues and concerns in front of the public if you’re going to be successful.

“One thing that surprised us is that many in the public did not know we had this financial struggle,” she added. “We had to get the message out there that ‘hey, we are not recovering like the economy has overall.’”

Suisun City launched the educational campaign, Sway, in March that included online surveys, town hall meetings, postcards and ample opportunity for public input. Bragdon said her staff used the information collected from the Sway campaign to prepare the outline of where Measure S funds would be utilized.

Measure S is forecast to generate approximately $1.8 million per year for the city’s general fund. Similar to Fairfield’s Measure P, the bulk of Measure S funds will go toward police and fire services. Improving emergency response time, neighborhood police patrols, youth crime and gang prevention and fire prevention and protection are all at the forefront. Money will also be utilized to fix potholes, maintain city streets and lights, and community parks.

Measure P, first approved by 68 percent of Fairfield voters in 2012, now generates $16 million a year and represents 20 percent of Fairfield’s general fund budget. Without it, Fairfield would have been forced to make devastating cuts years ago, across all departments, from police and fire to youth and senior services.

“We were very excited, especially to see as many, if not more voters, had passed it in 2016 with a stronger margin than a few years ago,” said

Fairfield City Manager David White. “To us, it really re-affirmed the direction we are headed.”

If the Measure had failed in November, White and his staff would have been forced to make those deep cuts they were able to avoid back in 2012. Between 30 and 40 police positions would have been eliminated. A fire station would have also been closed, as well as youth and recreation centers.

“The cuts would have been across all departments, with the most significant hits in police and fire,” White said. “There would be no Heart of Fairfield plan, no addressing homeless issues. These funds allow us to keep doing what we are doing, at the level that we are doing it and for our employees, that’s a very high level.

“The quality of life in Fairfield would be a lot different without Measure P.”

Funds generated from Measure P will continue to be used in a similar fashion as it has been since 2012, with an emphasis on police, fire and emergency response services. Money will also go towards addressing issues of homelessness as well as improving streets and roadways. In the last three years alone, the public works department was able to maintain and improve 15 million square feet of residential roads because of Measure P money.

“The original tax was a five-year tax and now, because this is a 15-year tax, it gives us the stability and ability to really plan for the long-term and think about the community over the next 15 years and what services and programs we will provide,” White said. “I was very excited to see the community support for this tax, the community support for the services we provide on a daily basis, and the community support for our long-term vision.”

Meanwhile, also approved in November’s election, by a solid 72 percent of the vote, was Fairfield’s Measure T, which allows the city to extend its city limits to include the proposed site for the Pacific Flyway Project, near Interstate 680 at the Gold Hill Interchange.

Passing the measure was the first step in bringing the educational facility and public attraction to Fairfield. The Pacific Flyway Center, proposed by the non-profit organization Pacific Flyway Fund, is envisioned as a 95,000 sq. ft. facility that will highlight the wonders of the Pacific Flyway – a 10,000-mile ‘superhighway in the sky’ stretching from Alaska to South America that serves as a migration path for more than a billion birds – and the Suisun Marsh. It’s estimated that the center could bring up to 500,000 new visitors to our area every year. Visitors would not only be able to explore the two-story center, but also experience a 50-acre “Marsh Walk” that will allow them to come face-to-face with waterfowl and other wildlife in the wetlands.

The passage of Measure T also permits the city to begin the process of providing essential services to the project site, such as water, sewer and other utilities – all that the Pacific Flyway Center has promised to fund.

The project is still in the early planning stages, with a number of permits, reports, and other approvals still necessary before any construction can begin. Expect to see this project at the forefront as we move into 2017 and beyond. ♦

NorthBay Healthcare board members and city and county officials pose with golden shovels to mark the official beginning of construction of a three-story hospital wing.

Grand Opening and Ground Breaking Ceremony Held at NorthBay Medical Center

The grand opening of a dramatic steel and glass Welcome Pavilion became the backdrop for a ground breaking ceremony this fall, heralding the beginning of a four-year modernization project at NorthBay Medical Center.

NorthBay Healthcare board members and city and county officials posed with golden shovels and turned dirt for photos in November to mark the official beginning of construction of a three-story hospital wing, and renovation which will turn the hospital's previous lobby into a much larger Emergency Department.

"None of this would have been possible if not for the clear-sighted leadership and guidance provided by our board of directors during the past six decades," said Gary Passama, NorthBay Healthcare President and CEO.

The Welcome Pavilion has been carefully designed with color, artwork and furnishing to provide a calm and relaxing patient experience. It features an electronic way-finding kiosk to help patients navigate through the medical center, a private patient registration area and a brand new NorthBay Guild Gift Shop.

"This pavilion is simply a harbinger of the new hospital that NorthBay Medical Center will become in the next few years as we invest nearly $200 million to bring more advanced medicine to the Fairfield and Suisun City communities," said Konard Jones, president of NorthBay Healthcare Group and future CEO of the corporation.

The new 77,000-square-foot wing will include six new state-of-the-art operating rooms, two new cardiac catheterization labs, a modern cafeteria with indoor and outdoor seating, nutrition services, diagnostic imaging and supply rooms. Also included are 22 new "patient rooms of the future" featuring the latest technology in health care, and 16 more post-acute care beds.

Work is now underway transforming the old hospital lobby into a 7,000-square-foot expansion of the Emergency Department, which will open in early 2019. The addition will add 10 new treatment bays to the facility, for a total of 26.

Architect for the project is Ratcliff Architects of Emeryville; contractor is DPR Construction of Sacramento.
