Diabetes Alert Day: A One-Day 'Wake-Up Call' For Millions at Risk of Contracting Disease

by Rena Salamacha, CEO, Mee Memorial Healthcare System

Observed annually on the fourth Tuesday in March by the American Diabetes Association, Diabetes Alert Day is a one-day "wake-up call" that focuses on the seriousness of diabetes and the importance of understanding our risks.

This year that wake-up call occurs on March 27, but there's no time like the present to face the realization that the disease is winning the battle on a national level.

The statistics are alarming:

- 37.3 million Americans — or about 11.3 percent of the population — currently have diabetes.

- About 1 in 5 Americans living with diabetes, or 8.5 million people, are unaware that they have the disease.
- Approximately 96 million people over the age of 18 have prediabetes, a condition in which blood glucose levels are higher than normal but not high enough to be diagnosed as diabetes.
- More than 8 in 10 adults living with prediabetes don't know they have it.

Diabetes and rural healthcare

As the primary healthcare organization serving the rural communities of Southern Monterey County, Mee Memorial Healthcare System takes diabetes education seriously.

There exists an increased concern for rural communities such as ours compared to urban areas. This is due to more prevalent risk factors and often more limited access to services.

Common risk factors for diabetes include:

- Obesity
- Physical inactivity
- Poor diet
- Older age (age 45 and older)
- Family history of diabetes

If you have diabetes, you need to make choices and take action every day to manage blood sugar levels. That includes eating healthy food, being physically active most days, taking medicine if needed, and getting regular checkups.

Diabetes is challenging for anyone to manage, but you may have additional barriers, including:

- Communication: If you can't communicate fully with your doctors or they don't understand your values and preferences, you're less likely to follow treatment instructions and make lifestyle changes.

Let's debunk one popular myth though: You do not need to cut carbohydrates out of your diet!

- Culture: You may put the needs of your family before your own health needs. You may want to use natural or traditional medicines instead of standard diabetes treatments. Many people also believe that taking insulin will cause diabetes complications (this isn't true).

For help dealing with daily diabetes care, ask your doctor for a referral to diabetes self-management education and support services (DSMES). These services can help you improve blood sugar, blood pressure, and cholesterol levels to enhance your quality of life.

Help could also come from around your own dinner table. When a family member has to change what he or she eats to manage diabetes, it affects the whole family. This can be an opportunity for everyone to make healthy changes, which is especially important for kids, because learning healthy eating habits early gives them the best chance to prevent diabetes later.

If you or someone you love are at risk for type 2 diabetes, try taking this quick and simple at <https://www.niddk.nih.gov/health-information/diabetes/overview/risk-factors-type-2-diabetes/diabetes-risk-test>.

Diet plays a significant role

One of the best ways to control or ward off the onset of diabetes is to practice more healthful eating habits.

It just so happens that the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics has designated March as National Nutrition Month. Its goal is to help others learn about making informed food choices and developing healthful eating and physical activity habits.

Following a balanced diet and eating meals at consistent times can help you lose weight and control blood glucose control. Glucose comes primarily from the foods that we eat, specifically carbohydrates — and it's not just sweets. While all carbohydrate-containing foods affect your blood glucose levels, they also play an important role in your overall health by providing energy for your daily activities.

When putting together a meal plan, include a variety of the following foods:

- Grains — whole-grain pasta, breads and cereals, and brown rice
- Vegetables — spinach, romaine, tomatoes and other colorful vegetables
- Protein — lean meat, chicken, fish, lentils, beans, tofu and tempeh
- Dairy — low-fat or fat-free yogurt, low-fat or fat-free milk, and fortified soy milk
- Fats — avocado, walnuts, olive oil

A registered dietitian nutritionist can help you create a customized plan that takes into consideration your food preferences, age, sex, activity level and medical diagnoses. ■

An Introduction to Salinas

FROM THE DESK OF Kimbley Craig, Salinas Mayor

The Salinas Valley, also known as the “Salad Bowl of the World,” is one of the world’s largest agricultural centers. Salinas is a productive, vital and exciting community in which to live, work and play. Our community is growing and our goal is to develop and attract new business while retaining the character and history unique to the area.

The Salinas Valley Chamber of Commerce has a number of close connections to our City government including a Travel and Tourism Bureau, Business Development Committee and standing meetings with City administration. These efforts seek to stimulate economic growth while working to ensure that our high quality of life remains intact. By continually working together, along with community input, we succeed at policy solutions to ever-changing circumstances. Collaboration is a far better path to success, than trying to work separately from one another.

I want to welcome you to Salinas! We have made special efforts to embrace those visiting our community. Tourism is the fastest growing industry in California, and by positioning Salinas as the gateway to Monterey County, we can enhance our local economic base through tourism dollars. We have many attractions for locals and visitors including the California Rodeo, National Steinbeck Center, Ciclovía, Salinas Valley Food and Wine Festival, California International Airshow, Mariachi Festival, more.

Chamber membership is valuable because it represents the most concerned and committed business professionals in our community. This special edition of the Salinas Valley Business Journal is a showcase for businesses that help strengthen the community - ensuring a strong voice in key issues affecting Salinas.

Salinas is a dynamic city committed to a proper balance of needs for its citizens and business owners. With the support of the City of Salinas and agricultural, industrial, retail, manufacturing and professional businesses in Salinas, the Chamber will continue to play a key role in the growth, direction and prosperity of the Salinas Valley. ■

Salinas Overview

With a population of 162,791, Salinas is the population center of the Salinas Valley, which has long been known as “The Salad Bowl of the World” for its fresh produce, berries, flowers and wine grapes. Salinas serves as the County seat for Monterey County and has a charming downtown made famous by John Steinbeck in East of Eden. More recently, the region is emerging as a world hub of agricultural technology, known as “agtech”.

Although agriculture is the foundation of the local economy, more than 100 manufacturing firms call Salinas home. There is also a thriving healthcare sector as two of the largest hospitals in Monterey County are located in Salinas. Some of the largest employers in the area include: Taylor Farms, Salinas Valley Health, Tanimua & Antle, County of Monterey, Hartnell College, and the Salinas City Elementary School District.

The Location of Salinas

Salinas is located eight miles inland from Monterey Bay, 325 miles north of Los Angeles and 101 miles south of San Francisco, at the head of the Salinas Valley. It is bisected by Highway 101 and linked to the Monterey Peninsula by Highway 68.

Salinas Climate

Situated between the Gabilan range on the east and the Santa Lucia range on the west, the Salinas Valley comprises 640,000 acres, is 10 to 20 miles wide and 150 miles long.

Average climate is 56 degrees with any morning fog generally cleared by afternoon breezes.

The summer climate of Salinas is characterized by average afternoon temperatures in the 70s, dipping at night into the 50s.

Daytime winter temperatures are generally in the 60s, dropping at night to the middle 30s. Snow is an unusual sight, except in the surrounding mountains, but winter sports in the Sierra Nevada mountains are not far away.

The average rainfall of 14.14 inches is concentrated in the winter and early spring months. ➡

Why is ARCpoint Labs a Self-Pay Laboratory?

by Spenser Smith, Lab Manager, ARCpoint Labs of Monterey Bay & Salinas

A critical part of our business is that we are a self-pay-only laboratory, meaning that we do not accept insurance of any kind. Instead, we offer very low (often 90% below hospital healthcare blue book), up-front pricing for our lab services, orderable directly by our patients and clients with no fuss and no red tape.

In the industry, this is often called “cash-pay,” and accounts for a growing proportion of non-emergency medical services. Still, many of our patients wonder, why don’t we bill insurance at ARCpoint Labs of Monterey Bay and Salinas?

The short answer is that we want to provide a service to our customers that is not only reasonably priced, but is completely ethical and transparent. There are no surprise medical bills or hidden fees at ARCpoint Labs. You know the exact price for your tests before making the decision to order them. The decision to not bill through insurance has led to huge savings of time and money for us — savings which we pass on to our customers.

The Problem with Healthcare Insurance Billing

Almost all of us have experienced how difficult it can be to find out how much a doctor’s visit or medical procedure actually costs. Many of us are unlucky enough to have gone for an appointment, thinking our insurance covers it, only to receive a surprise medical bill weeks to months after the fact.

A 2016 Los Angeles Times article gives a common example of this experience. Five common laboratory tests were ordered for a patient. The hospital billed the patient’s insurance $408, and after the insurance kicked in, the patient was billed for $269.42 of that total. After receiving this bill, the patient called the hospital to find out the cash price for those five tests was only about $75. The patient ended up paying almost four times the actual cost of the tests by billing through their insurance! The cash price at ARCpoint Labs for a similar panel of routine tests? $59, and that’s in post-inflation 2023 dollars.

According to the LA Times article: “This is utterly crazy,” Caroline (the patient in the article) said. ‘It’s such a huge difference. Why wouldn’t I just always tell them that I want to pay cash?’ ”

Great question. And answering that highlights the insanity of U.S. healthcare pricing.

“This is one of the dirty little secrets of healthcare,” said Gerald Kominski, director of the UCLA Center for Health Policy Research. “If your insurance has a high deductible, you should always ask the cash price.”

The chance that you, reading this article, are one of the people with a high-deductible insurance plan that Dr. Kominski is talking about is pretty high. Over half of American workers in 2021 were enrolled in high-deductible insurance plans, an all-time high. For those of us in this category (myself included), the cost of even simple procedures or bloodwork can end up being significantly more expensive through insurance than paying out of pocket.

Hence, ARCpoint Labs only charges “cash pricing,” meaning the patient pays directly. The price is known ahead of time, and can be compared to other options to shop around for the best deal. Even better, the fact that we do not need to go through the expense and red tape of insurance billing makes our services both cheaper and more convenient.

Walk right in to our lab and you can order the tests you need, get tested promptly, and walk out knowing exactly what it cost you. No stress, no scrambling for a doctor’s office visit that leads to a blood draw appointment weeks later.

In general, paying for medical tests directly can be a cost-effective and convenient option for anyone who wants to take control of their health and avoid the complexities of insurance. Even at hospitals and other clinics, you can inquire about the cash price of a service ahead of time. It could save you a lot!

Who benefits the most from paying directly for medical labs and services?

Individuals who can most benefit from paying for medical tests with cash, rather than trying to go through insurance, include:

- People with high-deductibles.
- Individuals with little or no insurance coverage — people who may not have insurance or have a plan that does not cover their desired medical tests.
- People with FSAs or HSAs — flexible spending accounts or health savings accounts can also be used to access cash-pay services, including at ARCpoint Labs, for substantial savings.
- Those who want to avoid the hassle of insurance bureaucracy — get your tests done quickly and efficiently without having to worry about insurance pre-authorizations, co-pays, or denied claims.
- People with known health issues or goals who want to track their progress — check in regularly on your cholesterol, heart health indicators, hormones and vitamin levels, and more to see your health in real time.

Self-pay won’t work for everyone. Obviously, when insurance will pay for a test or service, it makes sense to use it. For many of us, however, upfront self-payment offers huge savings and convenience. Many of our patients have thanked us for the ability to order their own laboratory tests directly, letting them be more involved with their own health and giving them peace of mind.

This organization, whose goal is to connect Steinbeck's themes with today's world, is planning a Steinbeck Center to be built in downtown Salinas offering year-round visitors programs and exhibits. The Foundation also assists teachers with ideas for presenting Steinbeck's work to students.

The California International Airshow at Salinas Airport attracts over 60,000 people each year to what is considered the most exciting and successful show of its kind anywhere in the United States. Monterey County Wineries

More than 40,000 acres of wine grapes are grown over 15 different appellations in Monterey County. Much of the vineyards are planted in the Salinas Valley to take advantage of the longer growing season, which allows grapes to mature slowly to develop intense varietal flavors and an ideal sugar acid balance. Some of the wine grapes are sold to wineries in other areas, but a growing percentage is crushed locally with wineries and tasting rooms attracting visitors into the rural reaches of the county. Guests are invited to discover up to date details on tasting rooms at www.montereywines.org.

Activities for Teenagers

Salinas Community Center has varied programs and activities to entertain children and teenagers. Drop-in activities in the free teen lounge include pingpong, television, Nintendo, music and more. Special events such as movie nights, field trips, swim nights and barbecues are also scheduled throughout the year.

At Bread Box Recreation Center volunteers offer boxing, karate, weightlifting, judo and gymnastics instruction. Arts and crafts, billiards, table games and movies provide additional entertainment for teens.

YMCA of the Central Coast, with its goal of building strong kids, strong families and a strong community, offers a number of youth programs. The downtown YMCA facility offers classes and equipment for health enhancement, two pools for swim lessons and fitness for all ages. Adaptive swim pro-grams, the Alisal Summer Swim Project in East Salinas, fitness and health classes offered away from the YMCA, as well as the camping programs, help the YMCA reach out to everyone in the Salinas community.

The Police Activities League is hosted is based out of the Salinas Armory at 100 Howard Street and boasts more than 50 different programs that cater to more than 5,000 children annually. Some of the more popular programs include dance, technology and the

The Youth Orchestra Salinas (YOSAL) is a non-profit organization committed to social change in our youth and communities through the inspiration, discipline, and performance of classical and ensemble music. Yosal goals are to make classical music accessible to the city's underserved youth and to provide a safe and inspirational after-school program in which they can also access mental health resources, such as counseling and music therapy. YOSAL provides instruments, weekly music classes, ensemble rehearsals, choir, music theory, and music history classes, all free of charge.

History

Salinas' earliest inhabitants were small tribes of Native Americans who were largely undisturbed during the Spanish era. It wasn't until Mexico gained independence from Spain in 1822 that outside settlers began to arrive in Salinas. Named for a nearby salt marsh, Salinas became the seat of Monterey County in 1872 and incorporated in 1874.

In the mid-1800s, Salinas' agricultural industry began to grow. In 1867, several local businessmen laid-out a town plan and enticed the Southern Pacific Railroad to build its tracks through Salinas City.

Agriculture continued as the area's major industry and by the end of World War I, the "green gold" growing in the fields helped make Salinas one of the wealthiest cities (per capita) in the United States. Today, "The Salad Bowl of the World" fuels a $2 billion agriculture industry which supplies 80% of the country's lettuce and artichokes, along with many other crops.

In 1924 Salinas had the highest per capita income of any city in the United States. During the growing seasons of the Great Depression, the volume of telephone and telegraph transmissions originating in Salinas was greater than that of San Francisco. This activity was reflected in a burst of building construction, many employing the streamlined shapes and organic patterns of Art Deco or Art Moderne. Many examples remain, including the National Register-listed Monterey County Courthouse and the Salinas Californian newspaper building. Several other notable structures are also highlighted, including the Victorian house where John Steinbeck was born. ■

Snapshot of Agriculture in Monterey County

by Chamber Staff

The Salinas Valley leads the world when it comes to agricultural production. In 2021, the valley produced more than the entire state of Pennsylvania when it comes to agricultural production. Total Monterey County crop values in 2021 amounted to $3,386,950 making the region one of the top five agricultural producing Counties in California. The incredible success of Salinas Valley agriculture is thanks to high value crops with a high number of growing cycles in a season. Berries remain one of the most successful crops ranking #1 or #2 any given year. Additional top ten crops include artichokes, broccoli, cauliflower, celery, wine grapes, head lettuce, leaf lettuce, nursery products and spinach. Several of the crops produced in Monterey County rank #1 in the United States and #1 in the world. The Salinas Valley has also grown its exported vegetables. The top ten exported crops in the county are lettuce, strawberry, broccoli, celery, cauliflower, spinach, cabbage, carrot and brussels sprouts. The top ten countries that Monterey County crops are exported to, by trade partners, are: Canada, Mexico, Taiwan, Japan, Hong Kong, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, United Arab Emirates, Republic of Korea and the United Kingdom.

THE EPICENTER OF AGTECH

Salinas has been recognized as one of the most productive and profitable agricultural centers in the world. This is thanks to a dense concentration of high value crops and highly advanced agricultural practices that grow more advanced daily. At the heart of this fast paced development is the Western Growers Center for Agricultural Innovation. Established in 2013, the Center for Innovation serves as an incubator for agricultural technology (ag-tech) start-ups. More than 100 companies have been housed in the center and recent success stories include a $500 million acquisition. Salinas is also home to the THRIVE Accelerator which accepts twenty global start-ups annually to participate in high level coaching, grant funding and partnerships with large agricultural firms. Salinas is also home to an advanced 90,000 square foot USDA Agricultural Research Service facility working closely with the University of California. Their Salinas campus hosts world renown researchers engaged in technology transfer with private industry. Salinas is well poised to lead global innovation in robotics, remote sensing and other innovation. ■

Salinas Valley Cities

Nine miles south of Salinas you will find Chualar, a small enclave with a population of around 1,500 residents. Chualar was founded on the ranch of David Jacks in the 1860s. Today, Chualar is best known for irresistible pan dulce, tortas and tamales at Alma's Bakery on the north end of town. La Fiesta, a family owned and operated business, is a Valley favorite for fresh mouthwatering carnitas. Chualar is also one of major gateways connecting 101 and the Santa Lucia River Road Wine Trail. Odonata Winery and the Monterey Zoo are only minutes across the Chualar River Bridge. Chualar holds an important place in Monterey County history due to a horrific accident that trailblazed the end of the Bracero guest worker program. On September 17, 1963, news broke, and headlines read, "Worst bus tragedy in the state of U.S. history.". At the crossing of Thomas Ranch Road and Highway 101 an unregistered vehicle transporting 58 agricultural workers collided with an oncoming train. The crash resulted in 32 fatalities. In 2013, fifteen miles of Highway 101 between Chualar and Soledad were named the "Bracero Highway Memorial" in honor of those who died.

Gonzales

The history of Gonzales dates back to 1836 when Terodoro Gonzalez acquired the land through the Rancho Rincón de la Puente del Monte grant. Gonzalez went on to marry Guadalupe Villarreal. They had two children Dr. Mariano Gonzalez and Alfredo Gonzalez. The brotherly pair founded Gonzales in 1874 after being granted the land by their father. They originally designed the town to have 50 blocks. Gonzales was once land ruled by dairy farming that ended early on in the turn of the 19th century. Today the quaint and culturally diverse community of over 8,000 people is in the heart of the Salinas Valley's agricultural and wine region. Gonzales is an established regional leader in agricultural-technology and innovation, environmental awareness, and sustainable practices. The town has a handful of small family-owned businesses like La Plaza Bakery notoriously known for their raspados de leche (of milk). It also has quick off-the-highway access to fast food options such as McDonald's, Subway, and Taco Bell and close by is Central Park, perfect for picnicking. Locals often frequent Carlito's Steakhouse and Bar located near the south end of the city. It is tradition to leave your mark by creating a design on a dollar and hanging it from the ceiling in the bar area. Also located downtown, travelers can experience the friendly hospitality and small-town charm of Gonzales at Luigi's Italian restaurant. Wine lovers can roam the nearby foothills along Gonzales River Road, home to approximately 11 vineyards, and enjoy world class wines from local wineries.

Soledad

Soledad is a city of 24,778 residents in the heart of Monterey County. The City was incorporated in 1921 and has strong ties to the Soledad Mission that was established on October 9, 1791. The Soledad Mission is impeccably restored and open to the public daily. Soledad is well known in the Salinas Valley as the "Gateway to the Pinnacles" National Park. It is also famous for the thousands of acres of grapes planted nearby. Wine enthusiasts flock to Soledad to visit Chalone Winery. Chalone hosts the oldest continuously producing vineyard in Monterey County. Soledad is growing and diversifying its economy and is worth a visit. The chicken Caesar salad at the Windmill Restaurant or chavela at California Gourmet Pizza will not disappoint. ➡

Spring is the Season of Hope, and Where There's Goodwill, There is a Way!

by Goodwill Central Coast Staff

Spring is the season of hope — full of meaning and promise that things will get better.

"If we had no winter, the spring would not be so pleasant," wrote English poet Anne Bradstreet. "If we did not sometimes taste adversity, prosperity would not be so welcome."

Spring officially begins on March 21 when we have tipped the balance from longer nights to longer days. Equinox means "equal night" of light and dark (roughly), and metaphorically, we should also spend more time in the light.

To give us more light and more hope, the U.S. adopted daylight saving time in 1918 to help reduce the cost of energy. Longer days meant reduced electricity for lighting and appliances, with added bonuses of less crime and fewer traffic accidents.

We have stuck with the tradition and soon we will set our clocks forward one hour. That means losing an hour of sleep but adding an hour of daylight to our evenings.

What will you do with that extra hour of daylight? Goodwill Central Coast offers this suggestion: Use it as a reminder to take a step back and look at the things in our lives that need work or a refresh.

Daylight savings comes in handy because we can use the extra hour in the day to do something productive — like tackle that area of the closet you have been too scared to go through for the last month.

If decluttering is at the top of your to-do list, you may find yourself gathering up donations to drop-off at your local GCC donation site.

While there is no right or wrong way to prepare your items for Goodwill, there are some simple things you can do to make the donation process more streamlined. Take these simple steps to make the drop-off easier and ensure your donations deliver the most impact possible.

Instead of packing all of the items you plan to donate into a single bag or box, separate them by category. We recommend separating soft items like clothing from other breakable items, like dishes. This will make the sorting process easier for the donation center attendants and prevent accidental damage.

Here are some tips that you may find helpful:

Apparel

- Keep shoes as a pair. Tie those laces together or put a rubber band around them so they do not become separated. The hottest trend is clothing from the 1970s and '80s — and now even the '90s. Interesting and popular fabrics are highly desirable and a welcomed donation. Accessories such as scarves, belts, hats and handbags are always in demand. These items go a long way in providing a well-balanced assortment at our store locations, where we employ nearly 300 staff members. Of course if you're a donor picking out a new pair of jeans, why not pick out a cool belt to go with it.

Jewelry

- Jewelry is an extremely desirable donation. All jewelry we receive, along with rare coins, stamps, gold and silver scraps, are sent to our secured and specialized jewelry center. We have a team of highly trained staff members testing, validating and purveying all of these items. We accept all types of items, and have a secure process in place for your jewelry donation to be protected. We even have sophisticated precious metal and gem testers to validate gold and other gems so we can allow our donors to purchase these wonderful items.

Electronics

- We accept items such as functioning electric keyboards, personal computers, tablets, video games and consoles, cellular phones, stereos and speakers. Broken or damaged items are responsibly recycled, keeping them out of the waste stream.

Fragile items

- If you have any fragile items to donate, such as dishes, porcelain figurines, jewelry, or mirrors, make sure you package them carefully to avoid breakage. If fragile items are boxed up, please mark "fragile" on the outside of the box.

Games/puzzles

- For items that have multiple pieces like puzzles and games, make sure everything is accounted for. And be sure to put a rubber band around the outside of the box so items will not get lost.

Containers

- We welcome your donations whether they come in a bag, box, or any other container. We will recycle plastic bags and cardboard boxes, but you can also deliver your goods in reusable containers such as fabric bags, plastic bins, and even laundry baskets for a more sustainable way to donate.

Once you've gathered and organized the items you want to donate, the last step is taking them to your nearest Goodwill Central Coast donation center.

Once collected, your donations will be given a second life in our retail stores, where they will generate funds to support our job training programs and employment services throughout our shared communities.

So, make the most of that extra hour of daylight! Your newfound organizational skills can translate into real change through the power of employment. ■

ADA ACCESSIBILITY IS YOUR BUSINESS COMPLIANT?

by *Lindsey Berg-James, Attorney
Noland, Hamerly, Etienne & Hoss*

The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) prohibits disability-based discrimination by all places of public accommodation. Places of “public accommodation” generally refers to businesses and nonprofit organizations that are open to the public, including but not limited to retail stores, restaurants, hotels, recreational facilities, gas stations, and professional services businesses. A business can be deemed to have violated the ADA by failing to comply with the accessibility standards, such that persons with disabilities may have more difficulty accessing and patronizing a business than people without disabilities.

The ADA is a federal law that requires remediation of the ADA violation as well as payment of the plaintiff’s attorneys’ fees. The ADA does not require notice of an alleged violation prior to filing suit and often businesses do not realize they are in violation until they are sued. While businesses should aim for ADA compliance so they are accessible to all customers, another financial incentive to comply is California’s Unruh Act. The Unruh Act makes any violation of the ADA a violation of the Unruh Act, and subjects violating businesses to a minimum $4,000 penalty if a violation exists and a disabled person sues the business.

This provision of the Unruh Act has made California a hotspot for serial ADA plaintiffs who actively seek out non-compliant businesses to sue, some even traveling to California from out of state. Some high frequency litigants file hundreds of suits each year, and travel to different counties just to drum up more lawsuits. Provided these plaintiffs are correct and an ADA violation exists, which is often the case, the suits are not frivolous and the Unruh Act entitles them to compensation, plus their attorneys’ fees. The bulk of these serial plaintiffs are represented by the law firm Potter Handy, which files thousands of boilerplate ADA lawsuits primarily against mom and pop small businesses.

Monterey County has seen a massive upswing in recent ADA lawsuits in the last year as serial ADA plaintiffs are electing to sue in state court, rather than federal court. Local businesses should take steps to make sure they are ADA-compliant before a suit is filed. One way to do so is to hire a Certified Access Specialist (CASP), an individual certified by the State of California to inspect buildings and sites for compliance with the ADA’s accessibility standards. A CASp can inspect your business and advise regarding changes that need to be made to bring the business into compliance. If your business undergoes a CASp inspection it will receive special protection in the event an ADA plaintiff alleges they encountered a violation of the ADA, including a possible stay of the lawsuit and a penalty reduction in the event violations exist.

Don’t wait until you are sued before ensuring your business is ADA-complaint. Take affirmative steps now to make your business accessible to all customers, and to protect yourself from litigation. ■

Greenfield

Back in 1905 Greenfield was known as Clark Colony. As time went on the city was referred to as Clark City. The name Greenfield was settled on when the United States Postal Service denied their request because of the commonalities with pre-existing cities under the same name. Mr. Greenfield was a long-time settler who not only played a major role in the city's early history but also in public affairs and service in the community. In 1947 Greenfield was officially recognized as a municipality by the State of California. Greenfield has become the home to over 19,000 residents. Throughout the town you can find some of the best Mexican cuisine in the Valley. La Tienda Michoacana is a local favorite for carne asada fries and quesabirra tacos. The Neveria y Paeteria Maru on El Camino Real has rich ice cream, crepes, mango-nadas and more. Roy's Swiss Sausage Factory on Cherry Avenue is also worth a visit. Folks drive a hundred miles for Roy's famous sausages and custom meats. The city of Greenfield also hosts the "Harvest Festival" event annually in October. The event includes a parade and community event complete with music, food, a car show and more. At the north end of Greenfield, the Yanks Air Museum offers RV hook – ups and overnight parking for anyone passing through the Valley. Greenfield also serves as a gateway to the Arroyo Seco River. Arroyo Seco is a 25-mile body of water that is best known for swimming and overnight camping. Overnight campaign with toilets and coin operated showers are available at the Arroyo Seco Campground.

King City

Charles King, the founder of King City, purchased 13,000 acres of the San Lorenzo land grant to grow wheat in 1884. After King had established himself in the area, Southern Pacific Milling Co. moved to construct a warehouse. That warehouse is credited with the origin of the City. J.E Steinbeck, father of award-winning novelist John Steinbeck, settled and met his wife in King City. One of the very first buildings that went up in King City still stands and is currently an Ace Hardware. On Broadway Street you will find several restaurants and small shops with the King City Cinema. The cinema is a three-screen theater opened daily. King City is also the home of the Monterey County Agricultural & Rural Life Museum on the grounds of San Lorenzo Park. The museum has kept local history alive since 1978 offering visits, virtual tours, and unique exhibits. The exhibits include La Gloria School House, Speckles Farmhouse, King City Train Depot, Olson Blacksmith Shop, Irrigation Museum, and Tractor Shed. The Salinas Valley prides itself on the histories this museum highlights. On the grounds there is also an RV campground as well as a traditional overnight campground and walking trails along the Salinas River. The playground area of the park has volleyball courts, softball court, horse-shoe pits, and a gazebo. King City hosts the Salinas Valley Fair annually in April. This is one of the biggest events in the Salinas Valley and brings in travelers from throughout California for the FFA and 4H live-stock auction. ➡

San Lucas

San Lucas, neighboring King City, is one of Monterey County's warmer regions along the Salinas River. San Lucas was named after Rancho San Lucas, a breathtaking 3,600 acre stretch, in 1842. In 1862 Alberto Trescony purchased the land from the Mexican Government and established the ranch. The ranch has remained owned and operated by the Trescony family for 180 years. To this day, the property has historic buildings such as a granary, barn, bunk house, and old shop. The main house was remodeled in 1998 and still serves as the main living quarters. On the drive in you will find the cozy Wild Horse Cafe off Highway 101 known for its home cooked American breakfast favorites. Off of Cattlemen Road you can find 198 Food & Beer, a popular location for locals and out-of-townners to grab a drink and have a delectable authentic Mexican meal.

San Ardo

San Ardo, on the south end of Monterey County, is well known for its oil fields. Since 1952 oil operations in San Ardo have employed hundreds of people and contributed significantly to the region's economy. Over 70 years later the community thrives. The city warmly welcomes you to dine at their homestyle San Ardo Cafe open daily. The cafe specializes in irresistible traditional Mexican dishes such as chile rellenos, huevos rancheros and enchiladas but also serves tasty French toast, omelets, and burgers. San Ardo is the passageway to 43 Ranch, a sixth generation mill for olives, with a southern spirit. 43 Ranch offers tours of the facilities, olive oil tastings, and has an onsite bar, The Mill. Both are family owned and operated with roots in the community since 1864. San Ardo is also enroute to the picturesque lake San Antonio, a calm sixteen-mile body of water surrounded by shady oak trees and the Santa Lucia mountains. The lake is a family favorite, great for swimming, boating, overnight camping, and fishing. The lake is most famously known as an exceptional fishing location for both striped smallmouth and largemouth bass, catfish, and bluegill. A quick drive down Highway 101 will also lead you to the historic Mission San Antonio de Padua founded in 1771. The mission seeks to have its visitors experience California as it used to be. The mission offers self-guided, scheduled public tours, and docent-led tours that provide additional information and stories that are exclusive to this selection. Visitors rave about the unique experience they have exploring the grounds. ■

Investing Through a Debt Ceiling Crisis

by Haley Hitchman, AIF®, CPFA

As of January 19, 2023, the US debt limit is once again in focus and has reached the ceiling, forcing “extraordinary measures” to be taken. The debt ceiling is the maximum amount of money the Treasury is permitted to borrow to pay its obligations. As it stands the current debt limit is $31.4 trillion. Extraordinary measures are a way for the government to move around money to pay their obligations.

Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen sent a letter to Congress urging them to take swift action and outlined what those extraordinary measures would be, mainly the suspension of payments to the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund and the Postal Service Retiree Health Benefits Fund. These measures, according to Yellen, should be sustainable until June, giving Republicans and Democrats time reach a deal to raise the debt ceiling.

Debt ceiling concerns have caused market volatility in the past, however typically much closer to the deadline. This time concerns about a deeply divided Congress have rattled investors nerves. An agreement must be reached to raise the debt limit to allow the government to borrow more to cover spending already approved by Congress and failure to do so would put the US government in default, failing to pay interest on Treasury securities. Republicans want to negotiate spending cuts before agreeing to raise the debt limit. In the debt crisis of 2011, the country came close to defaulting, causing the US credit rating to be downgraded by Standard & Poor's from the highest level of AAA to AA+, where it remains today. This caused world equity markets to tumble on fears the US would not be able to meet their debt obligations.

Should investors be concerned over the possibility of default? Lauren Goodwin, economist and director of portfolio strategy at New York Life Investments, says the effects of the debt ceiling conflict could be “Household and business confidence plummets, and uncertainty about asset prices, borrowing costs and economic activity amid a default or shutdown can make households and businesses reluctant to spend.” Goodwin goes on to say, “Worse even, a debt-ceiling fight this year would likely increase the effects of the economic slowdown and even pull forward recession timing.” Nevertheless, many experts agree that policy makers will eventually find a compromise, as they have in previous debt ceiling scenarios, and it is unlikely for the US to default on its debt obligations. In the last 40 years, the debt ceiling has been raised 45 times. The uncertainty on how long the debate will last could cause short-term turmoil in the market as we get closer to June, however, so far this year the market has widely ignored concerns on the debt limit. Unlike during the 2011 debt crisis, investors saw the S&P 500 declined 17% on debt ceiling concerns.

As a long-term investor, it is important to note that historically markets recover and by remaining in a diversified portfolio you can help manage risk in your investments. ■

The Benefits of an Assisted Living Community

by Madonna Gardens Assisted Living & Memory Care

Caring for a loved one can be rewarding but can also be emotionally and physically taxing. If your loved one's care needs have increased over time, you may want to consider additional help from a professional team at an assisted living community. Some of the many benefits are:

Socialization - The opportunity to chat with neighbors, share a cup of coffee or take a walk with a group can make a difference. Frequent and consistent social interaction have been shown to reduce the risk of Alzheimer's and dementia[1]. With a full calendar of daily social opportunities, many assisted living communities feature art therapy, musical performances, happy hours and more. There's also the benefit of having an extra set of eyes to keep track of your loved one's mental health and encourage interaction.

Dining - If your loved one has trouble cooking for themselves, maintaining a healthy diet or eating enough, the social dining atmosphere at an assisted living community can help with ensuring your loved one is well-fed and thriving. Eating meals socially has a powerful effect on increasing food intake - those who dine with others eat up to 48% more than those who eat alone[2].

Around the Clock Care - One of the benefits of living at an assisted living community is the around-the-clock care that is provided by a caring team. Help with medications, bathing and grooming, assistance at meals and having a personalized plan for your loved one's needs can help them thrive. Having a full team versus a single, at-home caregiver can make all the difference.

Four Key Energy Policy Facts to Guide Sacramento in 2023

As Sacramento returns to work, everyone can agree that policymaking should be based in facts, not false, overblown rhetoric.

To that end, here are four basic facts for legislators to keep in mind when considering California's energy policies in 2023:

1. THE FACTORS DRIVING HIGH GAS PRICES IN CALIFORNIA ARE NO MYSTERY – AND THEY CAN BE FIXED THROUGH BETTER ENERGY POLICIES.

Experts and economists have consistently pointed to three factors that are causing high gas prices in the Golden State:

- High taxes and fees
- Expensive environmental mandates, including requirements for refiners to make specific gasoline blends only sold in California
- Policies that limit refining capacity and create a tight market for transportation fuels

The California Business Roundtable recently reported that the state's energy regulations and policies are costing consumers and businesses $50 billion each year. Yet policymakers refuse to fix the bad policies that are driving costs higher:

"Past investigations have clearly defined the causes of the state's periodic fuel shortages and price spikes. Rather than deal with these root causes, the state has consistently ignored the results and imposed more taxes and regulations that lead to more and higher price spikes in the future."

2. NEW TAXES OR 'PENALTIES' WILL FURTHER DISCOURAGE IN-STATE PRODUCTION AND REFINING CAPACITY – THE OPPOSITE OF WHAT IS NEEDED TO EASE SUPPLY SHORTAGES AND PROTECT AGAINST PRICE VOLATILITY.

Economists have not been shy about pushing back against Sacramento's refinery tax scheme proposal at the heart of the legislature's special session.

Erich Muehlegger, professor of economics at University of California, Davis, warned that targeting oil company profits could make price spikes at the pump more likely by decreasing the supply of refined fuels coming to market.

UC Berkeley energy economist Severin Borenstein said that he was "worried" the proposal would bring back the supply crises of the 1970s, when pumps ran dry and cars lined up around the block for fuel.

Meanwhile, Larry Summers, former Treasury Secretary in the Obama Administration, wondered aloud on Twitter:

"I'm not sure I understand the argument for a windfall profits tax on energy companies. If you reduce profitability, you will discourage investment which is the opposite of our objective."

And the Editorial Board at Bloomberg warned:

"Energy is a volatile industry. Today's windfall can easily turn into tomorrow's wipeout, meaning that occasional years of high profits are essential to meeting future demand ... If companies think their profits can be seized whenever a bureaucrat deems them 'excessive,' they'll have less incentive to add capacity."

All in all, experts are not impressed with a "half-formed proposal."

3. CUTTING IN-STATE OIL PRODUCTION DOES NOTHING TO LOWER DEMAND. IT ONLY FORCES CALIFORNIA TO RELY EVEN MORE ON EXPENSIVE FOREIGN IMPORTS FOR BASIC ENERGY NEEDS.

California consumes more than 1.4 million barrels of oil each day while producing less than 350,000 barrels per day.

Faced with those basic figures and their consequences (high fuel costs and price volatility), Sacramento has chosen to pursue policies to shut down oil production in the Golden State even further and faster, somehow believing that cutting the supply of oil will magically end the economy's need for it.

Unfortunately, basic economics tells us that's not how supply and demand work.

As Stanford University economist Charles D. Kolstad puts it: "If California consumers continue to demand the same amount of gasoline, it will just come from elsewhere."

Experts agree the transition to the new energy future is going to take decades. California could promote renewables and electric vehicles while also still producing the oil the state needs during the long transition ahead.

Instead, Sacramento is choosing to shut down production and blindly push California energy policies ahead of our basic energy realities – leaving the state at the mercy of an unstable world for the vast majority of its energy supplies.

4. EVEN PRESIDENT BIDEN AGREES WE NEED MORE OIL, NOT LESS.

Throughout 2022, Californians were presented with a baffling split screen.

On one hand, their president viewed a fundamental oil supply shortfall as such a threat that he was begging shady foreign regimes to please keep the oil flowing and draining the nation's emergency petroleum stockpile to its lowest level in nearly 40 years.

On the other, their governor was doing everything he could to shut down oil production in one of America's most oil-rich states.

If President Biden knows more oil production is needed to ease gas prices and balance supply and demand, why isn't California contributing to that effort? Does the president realize there are companies eager to produce more oil in California – under the world's strongest environmental regulations, no less?

While the U.S. scrambles to protect its energy security, California oil production is down 25% in recent years, costing the state and the country millions of barrels of badly needed supply that could help ease prices at the pump and protect against volatility.

The consequences of failing energy policies are clear: high costs, price volatility, and heavy dependence on foreign oil for basic energy needs. To lower costs and ease California's oil supply and refining crunch, Sacramento must change course in 2023.

Community Hears from Leaders: Panetta, Lofgren, Craig, Nieto & Alejo

The Salinas Valley Chamber of Commerce was proud to present the Governmental Relations Breakfast to more than 250 attendees in February, at the Police Athletic League (PAL) Armory in Salinas. The event was designed to provide an opportunity for elected and appointed leaders in the region, to address important issues impacting business.

The event was created in response to the call for building a closer working relationship between the business community and our elected leaders. While many officials from throughout the region were present, speakers included Congresswoman Zoe Lofgren, Congressman Jimmy Panetta, Monterey County Board of Supervisors Chair Luis Alejo, Monterey County Sheriff Tina Nieto, and City of Salinas Mayor Kimbley Craig.

Present were elected officials, businesses, and members of the community-at-large, interested in receiving updates on the various facets that influence work and life in the region. Congresswoman Lofgren focused on the importance of funding for water supply in the county and immigration reform. Congressman Panetta announced that he is working towards a $1 million grant for the Salinas Police Department, and more than $30 million in federal grant funding to address homelessness. Mayor Craig focused largely on solutions to homelessness and collaboration opportunities with the County of Monterey. Supervisor Alejo spoke to his concern that Monterey County needs to build 20,000 new housing units in the next eight years. Newly elected sheriff, Tina Nieto, shared remarks on the role of the Monterey County Sheriff's Department on the recent response to floods that have impacted the county.

The Salinas Valley Chamber of Commerce Governmental Relations Breakfast is a new event based on the "Wake-Up Salinas Valley" events produced in the past, featuring various elected officials. The Salinas Chamber is exploring making this an annual event to continue fostering these critical relationships. The Governmental Relations Breakfast was made possible in part, due to the generous presenting sponsor, Vistra Moss Landing Energy Storage Facility. ■

Fenton & Keller – Offering Practical Solutions to Complex Legal Challenges in Monterey County and Beyond for More than 70 Years

Fenton & Keller arose from the law partnership formed in 1952 by J. Hampton Hoge and Lewis L. Fenton in Monterey, California. Both men were exceptional trial attorneys committed to the legal profession and to serving their community.

In 1951, as a young lawyer defending the State of California in a lawsuit concerning a snowplowing accident, Mr. Fenton met his future mentor, the well-known trial lawyer, Mr. Hoge. In fact, Mr. Fenton later regarded Mr. Hoge as the most important influence on his career. The following year, the two attorneys moved to Monterey and founded the law firm, Hoge & Fenton, which expanded over the years to include branch offices in San Jose and San Luis Obispo.

Attorney Charles R. Keller joined Hoge & Fenton in 1965 as the sixth lawyer in the Monterey office, then located at 977 Pacific St. In 1969, the office relocated to 2801 Monterey Salinas Highway in Monterey, where it remains today. During the 1970's and 1980's, the firm grew and became known as Hoge, Fenton, Jones & Appel, and focused primarily on insurance defense work. In 1993, attorneys at Hoge & Fenton's Monterey office decided to break off from the San Jose and San Luis Obispo offices to become the independent law firm, Fenton & Keller.

Leading up to 1993, the attorneys in the Monterey office shifted their practice areas from primarily insurance defense work to a broader array of general practice, probate and general litigation. Since 1993, Fenton & Keller has further expanded its expertise in employment law, estate planning, real estate, tax law, nonprofit governance, and business formation and advising.

Throughout its history, Fenton & Keller has remained active in our local community. Mr. Fenton was actively involved in founding the York School in Monterey, and in Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula's move to its current location in the late 1950's. The firm maintains a close relationship with Community Hospital and continues to represent it in a variety of matters.

The firm also has continuing long-term relationships with the Pebble Beach Company, Stevenson School, and the Monterey Bay Aquarium. In fact, due to his relationship with the Packard family, Mr. Fenton assisted Julie Packard with founding the Aquarium in 1984. Mr. Fenton was also a big supporter of the Monterey Jazz Festival.

In one of his rare criminal cases, Mr. Fenton got the guitar player from the 1960's rock-pop group, The Mamas and Papas, out of jail. The musician was arrested after an alleged bad LSD trip. Mr. Fenton's novel defense that freed him: the only evidence against the rocker was his own confession, which, if it were indeed given, was under the influence of drugs and therefore inadmissible.

In another memorable case, Mr. Fenton successfully defended the popular TV and film actor, James Garner, against accusations he punched a heckler in the face at the Crosby golf tournament (today known as the AT&T Pebble Beach Pro-Am). Not only did the jury unanimously find in Garner's favor, they sought him out for autographs, hugs, and kisses. Mr. Fenton recalled to The Monterey Herald of "hastily removing a smudge of lipstick from his client's cheek."

Not to be outdone by Mr. Fenton, Mr. Keller also handled many memorable cases for the firm. Fenton & Keller represented award-winning actor-director, Clint Eastwood, in a significant case defending against a fraudulent claim relating to a violation of the Americans With Disabilities Act (ADA) at Eastwood's Mission Ranch. The case got nationwide publicity largely because Fenton & Keller admitted non-compliance, but the jury found in Eastwood's favor because of the plaintiff's fraudulent attempt to claim an injury due to the violation.

More recently, Mr. Keller and local attorney Larry Biegel tried a case against the California Department of Transportation (CalTrans) for CalTrans' failure to protect motorists on Highway 1 just south of the Carmel River bridge from wild boar attracted to cross the highway to feed on plantings recently made by CalTrans to enhance the Carmel River's south bank. The plaintiff motorcycle rider was seriously injured when he collided with a herd of pigs crossing the highway. The jury awarded more than $8 million in damages.

Fenton & Keller's attorneys have handled numerous other trials and cases and have been successful at getting cases thrown out before trial. In 2019, Fenton & Keller attorneys, Christopher Panetta and Marco Lucido, successfully defended Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula in a disability discrimination case. The Court of Appeal upheld summary judgment in favor of Community Hospital, affirming there was no evidence it discriminated against the plaintiff.

In 2021, Fenton & Keller attorneys, Elizabeth Leitzinger and Gladys Rodriguez-Morales, obtained a $2.1 million award for their client in a harassment and discrimination lawsuit against the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation. The case involved the unauthorized distribution of an explicit video of a prison employee among prison staff and supervisors. The award followed a 10-day jury trial in Monterey County Superior Court.

Fenton & Keller attorneys have received numerous awards over the years for their legal acumen and community contributions. In 1985, Mr. Fenton was the first recipient of the Monterey County Bar Association's (MCBA) prestigious Gibson Award, named after the late California Supreme Court Chief Justice, Phil Sheridan Gibson. Each year, the Gibson Award honors an MCBA member who exemplifies the spirit of distinguished community service, as demonstrated by Justice Gibson, who "exhibited the finest traits of human understanding, personality and character."

And, in honor of Mr. Fenton's long and distinguished service to the community, the MCBA established the annual Fenton Award in 2005 to recognize excellence in advocacy in the legal profession. In naming the award after him, the MCBA said, Mr. Fenton "was our own legal giant and epitomized the finest attributes of our legal profession."

The first recipient of the Fenton Award in 2005 was his partner, Mr. Keller, who said of his longtime partner, Mr. Fenton, in accepting the inaugural award:

"Lewis Fenton was a lawyer's lawyer and a trial lawyer who was known far beyond the boundaries of Monterey County. He had the skill and talent to practice the profession anywhere he chose and it didn't take long for his reputation to grow both in Monterey and elsewhere. He was tall and had an elegant almost regal bearing and a way of relating to juries that was unmatched. It made no difference what the case was about because he could communicate on whatever level the subject matter required but without ever talking down to his jury. In his dealings with other lawyers and the bench he was the model of integrity and civility, and emphasized that those virtues should never be forgotten in the heat of battle. While there will never be another Lewis, we can honor him and his legacy by following his lead and making the profession we have chosen an honorable one."

More recently, in 2019 Fenton & Keller attorney Sara Boyns was named Businesswoman of the Year by the Salinas Valley Chamber of Commerce.

Fenton & Keller attorneys continue the tradition of legal excellence established by Mr. Fenton and Mr. Hoge, and continued by Mr. Keller through vigorous, proactive representation on a wide variety of legal issues and a commitment to community service. Several of the firms' attorneys have been appointed to the judiciary, while others have served and continue to serve as members of the boards of community service organizations throughout the Monterey Bay region.

YOUR BENEFITS AT A GLANCE

The Salinas Valley Chamber of Commerce offers targeted benefits, valuable resources and unparalleled support that will help you and your organization. The Chamber offers educational and networking opportunities, business resources, and government advocacy to protect and advance the interests of business. Members enjoy numerous benefits and become part of an organization that has served its members and the community for over 100 years.

Your Chamber membership brings credibility to you and your business; increased visibility; assists in professional development opportunities; offers you a voice in government; facilitates your making important connections; offers opportunity for Chamber Member ONLY referrals.

SALINAS VALLEY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEMBERSHIP BENEFITS REVIEWED

The Chamber conducted a survey to rank the benefits utilized by our membership. Here are the results and if you aren't utilizing one of these aspects, please give us a call at 831-751-7725!

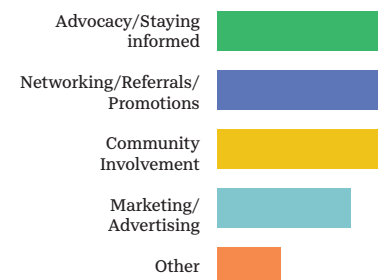

Chamber members joined primarily for advocacy and staying informed on business and community issues and for the networking, referral and promotional opportunities. Community Involvement was also a consideration and there are members that joined for marketing and advertising of their businesses.

When asked what service benefits organizations, being kept informed was the highest rated factor. This publication, the Salinas Valley Business Journal, certainly serves as the hub of the communications, and the high open rate of the newsletter reflects mirrors the benefit utilization. Members also value networking events and referrals and business connections. While members cited joining the Chamber for advocacy, this category of benefit was not ranked as highly as the information resources and networking/referral benefits. Advocacy is also not as tangible, as it is something that the leadership of the Chamber and staff members participate in on behalf of the membership.

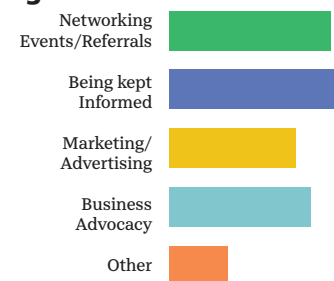

The Membership Survey also highlighted that our members are concerned about government regulation and infringement. There is uneasiness that government will overstep and over-regulate business. Employee recruitment and retention is another main concern. We have had members share hiring and retention challenges. While declining revenue and lack of investment capital was a concern for some, it was not weighted as high a priority as business regulations and employee challenges.

We received feedback too for programming that we are working on that touches upon improving existing services and looking into expanded collaborations and partnerships. ■
