President's Message

Mark These Dates

Greetings SPCREA Members, Supporters, & New Retirees

Well, January's meeting was a surprise to all of us. Due to a COVID issue at the American Legion, we had to quickly change to a zoom meeting. Thanks to Wanda Dudley and Paula Walker who made it happen! Our speaker from AARP was very helpful and I look forward to getting those packets to hand out to our membership. You can never be too prepared.

We plan to meet again at the American Legion for our February meeting on the 10th. Hopefully that works out for us! Our co-President Elects have designed a great lineup this year for us. The program for February will feature Joni Kerr presenting "The Art of International Teaching."

We will gladly take your school supplies from last month and our charity for the month of February will be Happy Workers Day Care. Preschool books and supplies are always greatly appreciated.

I received a call from Katie Sistar yesterday. She had a bad fall over the holidays and has some challenges ahead as she recovers. Because of that, she has resigned as our Corresponding Secretary. We appreciate her serving our chapter as our former Recording Secretary and then Corresponding Secretary. We wish her well in her recovery!

It is time to be looking forward to our new election of officers for the coming 2 years. If you are interested in any position, as an officer (we don't have life terms/sentences), committee chairperson/co-chairperson or committee member, please let Vicki Coleman or one of the officers know. We hope that some new faces will step up!

Looking forward to seeing you soon!

Cheryl

This has been a transitional year with once again dealing with the Covid virus and its various variants. We are hopeful that the American Legion staff is well and we can proceed with our February 10 meeting at the American Legion. If not, then our presenter, Joni Kerr, will join us via ZOOM. Whatever the venue, please join us at the February 10th meeting.

Brenda Schulz will open our program by introducing her book and sharing her journey in its birth. The floor is then open to any members who have an accomplishment to share, whether it is a hobby, a second career, or special event or project. If you have items you wish only to display (we know there are cross stitchers, photographers, clay artists) you can display your wares for members to see at their leisure.

Thoughts on the Art of Organization

Bob Busch provided members in attendance at the January meeting food for thought in organizing affairs for themselves or others. In keeping with the first of the year tradition of evaluating and keeping stock on how one is doing, a recent email from FREA provides an article from AARP titled “13 Things to Throw Away Right Now” Hopefully this summary will inspire you to monitor those closets, cabinets and any storage that we now use.

The article emphasized these items and areas to inspire us to minimize, organize and delete:

- 1: Anything that doesn't add value: Why you might want to downsize is highly individual. As Fields Millburn explains: “Understanding the why behind simplifying gives us the leverage we need to begin to let go and helps us understand what is excess.”
- 2: Just-In-Case Items: Those things that we keep for later on needs that as we look back never get used. Probably the only exception would be to keep your first aid kit handy in case of an emergency.
- 3: Photos and paper: If you have a trove of duplicate photos or just bad ones, coupons or mailers, bills and statements you can get on line, old newspapers and magazines and things you have ripped out of magazines. (I am guilty of having a box of magazines and recipes that I brought down from Illinois in 1998!!! Decided this is the year they get tossed. That beef wellington for two is probably not going to be needed. I can now google it.)
- 4: Actual trash: Just empty those trash cans, throw away that junk mail collecting on your counter and shred those documents you keep piling up to shred one day.
- 5: Damaged items: Yes, it is easy to hang on to things broken or damaged with good intentions. All that Tupperware that has all those missing lids need to be chucked.
- 6: Extras/duplicates: Things in this category, all those extra cups, handbags, sunglasses, spoons, wire whisks, etc. You can think of many more.
- 7: Stuff you never use: We have all had many years to collect items in this category. If you don't use something and it has been around for longer than you want to remember, good to pass it on. This includes books we have read.
- 8: An abandoned hobby (or one you never started): Materials we have that sit quietly in drawers and boxes that we have put away never to touch again. Great to contribute to schools, senior centers, or to another person who is active in that hobby.
- 9: Items from a past phase: No pet anymore, but the bowls and leashes are still here. Clothes worn during your past career but does not fit with your current life style.
- 10: Anything expired: Food, medications, make up. A great project to do every year.
- 11: Things that bring up bad memories: If an item doesn't make you feel good, best to get rid of it.
- 12: Clothes that don't fit: We all have plans to get back into that smaller size. A great way to organize your closet and donate items to others who can use them.
- 13: Digital clutter: Overhaul your email and texts. Unsubscribe from sites no longer of interest. Clean out your inbox.

Make this new year a cleaner, leaner one by letting go of stuff that crowds out the good stuff in our lives. Share your success in future newsletters. Your success may spur others to succeed also. Jan Wallis

Nomination Time – We Need Help/Input

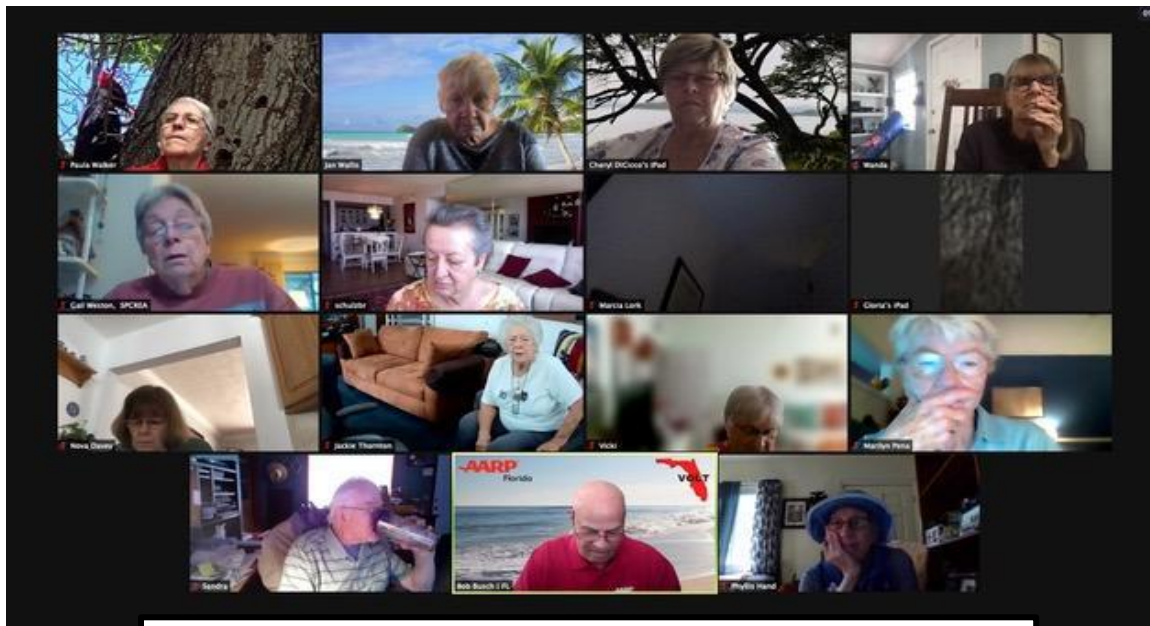

The holidays are behind us and it is time to focus on filling vacant positions on the SPCREA (South Pinellas County Retired Educators Association) Board for 2022 - 2024. This means the Presidential gavel will be turned over to the very capable Jan Wallis and Pat Davey. I am sure that all will agree that Cheryl DiCicco and company have done a masterful job of leading our group over these last two turbulent years. For that we are grateful.

Now it is time for someone to rise up and volunteer to step into the shoes of Jan and Pat as President-elect. You can do it by yourself, or you can share the responsibility with someone else. I know we have people in our organization who are willing to perform the duties of President-elect. I know we have people in our organization who would enjoy the opportunity to generate programs for the monthly meetings (with lots of support and suggestions from others, trust me, that's true) and preside if the President is unable to attend a meeting.

We also need a volunteer for the Corresponding Secretary position. When advised, this individual will send thank you cards, condolence cards, etc. to SPCREA members. This may be a way for you to support our group in the comfort of your own home.

Please take a moment, look inside yourself, can you make a commitment to either of these positions? "Seize that day and do something your future self will thank you for." Notify Vicki Coleman or any other Board member (email addresses listed in this Newsletter) if you think you would enjoy the opportunity to serve our group.

Jackie Thornton was honored at the January Beta Omega meeting for her 40 years of membership and service. She is a dedicated and valued member in whatever organizations she serves. Her membership with SPCREA is 25 years. Her recent contribution to both organizations is her music. Thank you, Jackie, for providing the members with the musical interludes that sets the tone for our meetings.

Thank you, Bob Busch for your informative presentation on The Art of Organization

Joni Kerr will relate her experiences as an international teacher and share some of her adventures in the various countries in which she has taught. As Joni shares her experiences with different cultures and customs, we will learn what it means to be a citizen of the world and teach a classroom full of multinational students.

By sharing her international experiences, she hopes to show how connected the people of the world are and in turn, hopes to encourage others to travel and possibly work in other countries in order to experience different cultures themselves firsthand.
