Amanda Moore

Was born and raised in the Upper Valley, graduated from Lebanon High in 2006, and has spent most of her life on the NH side of the river. She graduated from Franklin Pierce University with a BA in Human Services and is now a Business Account Manager for VABIR (Vermont Association of Business, Industry, and Rehabilitation) based out of White River Junction. Her work focuses on serving Vermonters with disabilities and other barriers to employment in their vocational pursuits by forming relationships with our local business community to better understand employer workforce needs. She formerly served on the Springfield Regional Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors for six years, including in the roles of Secretary, Vice President, President, and Past President over the last four.

Jennifer Eastman

Was born and raised in the beautiful hills and valleys of Quechee, VT, where her father and his siblings were raised by her grandparents on their farm (where part of the Quechee Club now resides), the Quechee Fells Farm. Graduating from Hartford High School in 1993, she spent the next 10 years of her life – on and off - working her way through college both at the University of Rhode Island and the University of Arizona, where she studied Retail and Consumer Science. She moved back to the Upper Valley in 2008 and after 13 years in sales and management, she finds herself happily ensconced in the Retail Management side of banking, first with Bar Harbor Bank and Trust, and now as Branch Manager at Mascoma Bank on Sykes Mtn. Avenue, White River Junction.
