

WV Project ECHO beginning weekly sessions on COVID-19 pandemic

Beginning Thursday, April 2, WVCTSI's WV Project ECHO will be hosting weekly sessions devoted to combating the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. These remote sessions will allow healthcare providers from across the state to ask patient questions and learn best practices from a panel of expert hub members. Sessions will take place from 12:15 to 1:15 p.m. every Thursday in April.

Interested participants can email Jay Mason, assistant director of WV Project ECHO, at jdmason@hsc.wvu.edu with any questions. Cases can be submitted online here (This session is temporarily replacing the Chronic Pain and HCV/HIV sessions normally held on Thursdays, so please disregard any information about chronic pain on submission form)
