EXPERIENCE

Community Organizer, Semillas Wellness; Southeast Los Angeles 2016 Current

As a community organizer in Southeast L.A., I'm aware of the lack of representation and resources that low-income communities of color face. As co-founder of Semillas Wellness, I have worked first-hand with community members who seek services revolving health and wellness; in addition to being the graphic designer and event coordinator for our collective.

Cooperative Member, Coop LA; South Gate, CA 2017 Current

My experience within a cooperative has taught me the importance of great communication, acting upon consensus, and strict task organization. I have learned to set realistic goals and carefully develop the proper systems to reach them while working within a large team.

Research Assistant, Internship Opportunity 2017 2019

As an Urban Planning undergrad at Cal Poly Pomona, my design studio professor contracted me to conduct research for various projects she was involved in. These projects included events in environmental justice, water scarcity and community development. I gained comfort and experience in attending multiple public meetings, interviewing and transcribing all I gathered.

Event Coordinator & President, ENV College Council 2018 2020

During my 2nd and 3rd years as an undergrad, I held positions on the Student Council for the College of Environmental Design. As Event Coordinator, I scheduled all internal and general meetings, between board members and various other club representatives. Later as President, I was responsible for a board of 11 members and 7 ENV Clubs. I learned to participate within every position as necessary, ranging from treasurer to creative director.

Enumerator, U.S. Census Bureau; Los Angeles, CA 2010-2010

Though an enumerator for the U.S. Census Bureau was a temporary position, as my first job after High School, I gained great experience in planning, communicating, and researching goals. I was able to work in a number of local cities to acquire large amounts of surveys at a fast pace. It also taught me the important of our population count which is heavily relevant within my major.
