DR. MAYSA ABU-KHALAF

Dr. Maysa Abu-Khalaf is committed to implementing an innovative multi-disciplinary approach to cancer therapy and developing novel platforms for cancer care delivery. She has been successful in providing academic leadership, fostering collaborations among clinical and research faculty to enhance the growth of multidisciplinary clinical and research programs, and engaging minority patients in clinical trial participation.

She also utilizes skills and training in business administration and management by identifying key innovative strategies within the Cancer Service Line for growth of the clinical breast cancer program. Dr. Abu-Khalaf has developed and conducted a comprehensive multidisciplinary clinical research portfolio including Phase I-III clinical trials and non-therapeutic research studies for breast cancer patients receiving treatment at a large multi-site academic healthcare institution.

She is an active member of the American Society of Clinical Oncology (ASCO) Health and Equity Committee, ASCO Survivorship Committee, ECOG-ACRIN Breast Committee and the Academic Breast Cancer Consortium. With more than 20 years of experience as a strong clinician, committed educator and mentor, accompanied by innovative administrative skills.
